

New Campaign Slogan Growing: 'You Got Me; I Dunno'

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—There's a new all-American campaign slogan which the voters have thought up all by themselves.

The Democrats parade under a banner proclaiming "You never had it so good." The Republicans keep harping on "It's time for a change."

And, to nobody's surprise, the politicians on both sides are predicting a victory big as all out-doors for their candidate.

But with election now less than a week away, the most astonishing fact of the campaign is the general uncertainty about the outcome.

Outside the professional political ranks it's almost an event to find a man willing to answer positively the question: Who's gonna win?

You hear the same answer so often it seems to have become a national slogan: "You got me; I dunno."

It's a bewilderment which seems to come equally from those who are going to vote for Gen. Dwight Eisenhower and from Gov. Adlai Stevenson's supporters.

Quite a change from 1948 when everyone, except President Truman and a few like-minded and hardy people, thought Gov. Thomas Dewey was a cinch.

Since sticking your neck out twice in a row can become a silly occupation, self-consciousness about the 1948 mistake may have made everyone cautious now.

But even the experts who have traveled with both candidates are pussy-footing on this one.

And the poll reports show caution in the Nth degree. They dwell on what would have happened, say, a month ago. But nary a prediction on what's coming next Tuesday.

And, adding to the confusion is not only the size but the noise of the crowds which have been turning out for Eisenhower and Stevenson alike.

Stories from the correspondents traveling with the two men repeatedly have used one word to describe the crowds' enthusiasm: Howling.

Still, the general timidity about next Tuesday's results should add to the national merriment if one candidate wins by a landslide.

First to emerge from hiding the day after election day will be the "I told you so" characters whose only pre-election prediction was: "Search me, pal."

And, if the result is one-sided, it will be worth waiting for to see the experts wrestle with themselves and one another in lengthy explanations of why the result should have been clear and was inevitable anyway.

Maybe it will take a tragedy in some future campaign — like a presidential candidate collapsing or dying from exhaustion — to awaken the politicians to a realization the campaigns have lasted too long.

In Britain candidates campaign for about three weeks. That may be too short in a country this big. But here the campaigns spread over almost three months and that seems too long and too inhuman.

There hasn't been a candidate in any American campaign, including this, who couldn't say all he had to say in a lot less time.

This campaign is a fine example of why every four years our presidential races are too long. Both Eisenhower and Stevenson are repeating themselves.

But politicians, who can't be accused of originality if it means tinkering with something that worked before, are firm believers in doing things as they were always done.

Factions Favoring, Opposing Charter Open With Big Guns

Pro-Charter Group Announces Anti-Charter Forces Attack Leaders Who Support Proposal 'Blank Check' Finance Point

Hints that the rising controversy over the proposed city charter is nearing its climax were seen Wednesday in the announcement that seven present or former councilmen have publicly announced their support of the plan to change Circleville's system of government.

Others widely known in the community were planning to do the same, possibly later this week.

There was no immediate way of knowing what effect this major strategy by pro-charter forces would have on the pre-election trend of debate over the city manager plan. It seemed certain, however, to inject a new high tension into the picture and possibly touch off far-reaching developments even before the voters decide the issue at the polls Nov. 4.

Those who have announced themselves in favor of the charter, in addition to charter group leaders already known, are as follows:

ROBERT ADKINS, John Eshelman, Dr. E. L. Montgomery and Waldon Reichelderfer, all former councilmen, and George Crites, Richard Penn and John Robinson, present councilmen.

Spokesmen for the pro-charter forces pointed out that all seven men have had full opportunity to study the needs of Circleville's government and hence are especially qualified to urge its revision.

Reports that persons widely known in the community were preparing to line up publicly in support of the charter plan have been current for some time. Because of their close association with the affairs of municipal government here, it was explained, the names of the former and present councilmen were released in advance.

Others in either of those two groups may join the list later. It was also known that a considerable number of charter supporters have asked that their names be withheld at this time because of business affiliations.

The new major move by those backing the charter plan apparently is geared to do more than merely answer anti-charter demands for a "full list" of the charter group. Indications were that those being enrolled already represent virtually every phase of local activity, including many of the city's leading business figures.

Neutral observers believed the new tactics launched in behalf of the charter cause could touch off, by the momentum of public sentiment, a wide clarification of the picture—heretofore clouded by the silence of most of those who will make the final decision.

IT WAS STRESSED that each of those listed publicly in support of the charter plan will have influence to varying degrees on an undetermined number of other persons, and that the roots of the charter support made public may be

Councilman Ray Cook, apparently opening the "final stretch barrage" for opponents of the city charter proposal, warned Tuesday night that it constitutes a "blank check" which could cripple municipal finances and open the way for a local "nuisance tax."

He concentrated his attack on four main phases of the city manager plan and swung heavily at other points advanced by the pro-charter forces.

Cook declared:

1. The charter system, in event of poor administration at the top levels, could lead to a breakdown of the city's financial structure.

2. The petition system proposed to pick candidates for city council would enable men to win office

"with less than 25 percent of the votes".

3. Under the councilman-at-large plan proposed by the pro-charter forces, powerful or even total control of council could be held by residents of the Northend.

4. The charter system "deprives a man of his right to vote" for enough of the top city officers to insure safe control for the taxpayers.

EVERY TIME the question of costs has come up," Cook said, "the charter crowd replies that nobody can say how much it will cost until the plan is actually tried."

If that's the case, it means that everyone who votes for the charter is voting to give out a blank check on the city finances. They say, in effect, that's the only way they can start it operating!

"We all know that a person certainly doesn't make a practice of doing that in private business affairs, so why should they ask us to do it in public affairs?"

"Supposing the city charter were in effect and they set up a budget—as they'd have to do at the beginning. Then supposing as the months went by they discovered they didn't have enough money set aside to maintain operations."

"They couldn't cut the salary of the city manager, but they certainly would be forced to cut deeply in the lower levels—bringing about a reduction in services, breeding confusion in the whole municipal structure and very likely bringing a nuisance tax into the picture as the only way out of the chaos."

On the voting system as proposed under the charter, Cook said he has "no objection to the petition plan itself," but warns that it could "spread out the voting" to such an extent that men would be elected without a significant total cast in their behalf.

"A GREAT MANY persons could have petitions circulated and then run for council," he declared. "The number, for example, could be as high as 35. Surely then, with the total votes spread over such a number, it's very unlikely that the winners could have a majority."

Cook pointed out that "in the southern states they often have run-off elections until somebody comes up with 50 percent of the vote, but under the charter there is no such provision for election."

"The men elected could be elected with less than 25 percent of the vote!"

"I know it's true the charter crowd talks about how this would be avoided by having only the high calibre men run for office. First of all, they ignore the fact that any-

Roks Again Rout Reds Off Ridge

South Koreans Capture Hill Seventh Time In Last 16 Days

SEOUL, Oct. 29.—South Korean infantrymen in savage close-quarter fighting Wednesday forced a battalion of Chinese Reds off the crest of bloody Sniper Ridge for the seventh time in 16 days.

The Roks, driven off its highest peak — Pinpoint Hill — late Tuesday night, began their counterattack at dawn.

Slopes they clawed back up the hills. They gouged out small gains with hand grenade barrages, then grappled hand-to-hand with the Reds in bunkers and trenches.

The central front crest was secured at 10 a. m. Then the Roks began a tortuous advance northward along the narrow, shell-scarred ridge, scene of the longest continuous battle since Heartbreak Ridge last November.

Roaring artillery barrages pounded the retreating Reds.

GEN. MARK CLARK, touring Korea, congratulated Lt. Gen. Chung Il Kwon, South Korean commander, for the "magnificent fighting" demonstrated by his men.

The Reds pounded U. S. 7th Division troops on nearby Triangle Hill with artillery and mortar fire during the night. There was no contact by ground forces.

Fighting flared briskly elsewhere along the 155-mile front as temperatures dropped to a chilling 35 degrees.

Groups of up to 175 Reds jabbed into Allied lines at five places southeast of Kumsong on the central front: By midafternoon all attacks had been repulsed.

In contrast to the vicious battle for Sniper, Allied soldiers seized one hill position without a fight Wednesday.

Chinese Reds had battled grimly for the hill, near Iron Horse Mountain, all day Tuesday, but there was no resistance when the UN troops approached Wednesday.

Measured by Red casualties, the fighting this month is the heaviest since last November. The U. S. Eighth Army said 27,096 Reds were killed, wounded or captured in the first three weeks of October. Last November the toll was 44,729.

Allied warplanes pounded Communist positions at the front and deep in North Korea Wednesday.

THE FLEDGLING South Korean air force launched the first all-Rok close support strikes of the war.

Ten B29 Superforts Wednesday dropped 80 tons of 500-pound bombs on a Communist military heading for quarters near Sopo, on the outskirts of the Red Korean capital of Pyongyang. Pilots reported large explosions.

B26 Invader bombers attacked Red supply centers behind the lines Tuesday night. Marine and Air Force fighter-bombers Tuesday dumped 7,000 gallons of jellied gasoline on a Communist supply area east of Sinnak near the Korean west coast. Pilots said more than 15 buildings were destroyed.

Ike Says Dems Bare Secret Document; Adlai Raps GOP

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Gen. Dwight Eisenhower and Gov. Adlai Stevenson both campaigned in the New York City area Wednesday, each going all-out for support as the tell-tale Nov. 4 election grows nearer and nearer.

In his campaign here, Republican Eisenhower charged that a "top secret document" on Korea is being used against him by his political enemies.

At the same time, Democrat Stevenson accused the general of a "sordid triumph of expediency over principle."

In his accusation, Eisenhower did not identify the "top secret document" other than to say it came from the Defense Department.

In a program broadcast nationally Tuesday night by radio and television, he said:

"This morning, there was a very significant item in the paper. It was this: There was quoted a top secret document of the American Defense Department. How it got there, we will never know, probably.

"There was a military estimate made in September, 1947, and it had this conclusion—the military occupation of South Korea is not essential to the security of the United States."

He asked his audience: "And how was a top secret document released? Wouldn't you like to know? Many Americans would."

In Minneapolis Monday, Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon, a Republican who has bolted his party and has said he could not support Eisenhower, read a government memorandum to an audience at the University of Minnesota.

It was signed by the late James Forrestal, former secretary of defense, and was dated Sept. 26, 1947. One paragraph read:

"THE JOINT Chiefs of Staff consider that from a standpoint of military security, the U. S. has little strategic interest in maintaining the present troops and bases in Korea."

Eisenhower, as Army chief of staff at that time, was a member of the Joint Chiefs.

The argument over responsibility for the actions that led up to the Korean war has been raging back and forth with increasing bitterness. It centers on this:

President Truman and other Democrats claim Eisenhower, as Army chief of staff, bears part of the responsibility for decisions affecting American policy in the Far East.

Eisenhower, in reply, says the Joint Chiefs made purely military estimates, at the request of the administration. He has emphasized his argument that a vast difference exists between such military estimates and political decisions.

And he has accused Secretary of State Dean Acheson of making a major blunder in announcing,

OHIO TO GET HUGE POWER GENERATOR

Guard Passes Checkup, Held On Fire Alert

Circleville's National Guard unit announced Wednesday it had passed the annual inspection by representatives of the 2nd Army and that seven new members have lately joined the local ranks.

Company I, 166th Infantry has been on "standby alert" here since last Friday, awaiting a possible call to aid in fighting forest fires in Southern Ohio.

Major John McGrown, adjutant of the 166th, said the Circleville company is probably next in line for such a call if forest fires become a major threat again in this region.

National Guardsmen in southern Ohio were called out some time ago to battle fires in that sector. Had it not been due to stand the inspection, Company I would have also been moved to the scene of that emergency.

THIRTEEN MEN have enlisted for duty with Company I during the last two months. The seven who joined during recent weeks were: Dorsey Bosworth, William Brungs, Donald Olney, Paul Wood, Joseph Sweazy, Jack McCain and Charles Wolfe. All but McCain, a resident of Amanda, are from Circleville.

None of the seven has had previous service.

Scouts To March In Spook Parade

An extra feature to Wednesday's Halloween parade in Circleville will be provided by local Boy Scouts and Cub Scouts.

Boy Scouts and Cub Scouts will march in the parade with their "Liberty Bell" float which they exhibited during Pumpkin Show.

The big parade, sponsored by Circleville Chamber of Commerce and directed by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, will form at about 7 p. m. Wednesday at the Courthouse.

Scene of the judging has been shifted from Memorial Hall to the Armory, meaning an addition to the parade route.

Beginning at the Courthouse, costumed paraders will march behind the Circleville high school band on Franklin street to Scioto, Scioto to Main, Main east to Pickaway street, Pickaway to Franklin and to the Armory.

A total of $125 in cash prizes await those who costume themselves and join in the parade.

The parade is held on Wednesday, two days before Halloween, because of the Circleville-Westerville football game Thursday and dismissal of schools Friday for a teachers' meeting.

Stolen Car Used In Stealing Gas

Pickaway County authorities were called upon late Tuesday to investigate an incident where men in a stolen car drove from a city filling station without paying their gas bill.

Deputy Walter Richards said he was called out at about 10 p. m. Tuesday on a report by Spur Oil Co., West Main street.

The attendant there said a convertible pulled up and $3 worth of gas was put into the tank. Then the driver asked for some matches, and while the attendant went inside for matches the car drove off.

Later, it was learned the car had been stolen from Chillicothe. The auto was not overtaken.

AN AID STATION in Korea becomes a polling place for these GIs who just manage to beat the deadline for voting in the Presidential election at home. They are (left to right): Pfc. ## 3 Top Ohio Candidates Press Campaigns In Vital Cleveland

COLUMBUS, Oct. 29.—Three of Ohio's four top political candidates were campaigning in Cleveland Wednesday for the second straight day.

Charles P. Taft, Republican candidate for governor, was the lone dissenter. He was scheduled for appearances at five GOP rallies in Cincinnati.

Democratic Gov. Frank J. Lausche, GOP Sen. John W. Bricker and the latter's Democratic opponent, Michael V. DiSalle, all were appearing in Cleveland. All four made Cleveland speeches Tuesday.

Lausche said the state's road construction program tops the program of all states. The governor also lauded state building during his tenure. He said:

"In five and one half years of my administration, without imposing any new taxes and solely out of savings, there has been invested in buildings and other property the sum of $149,220,000 for the six state universities.

"THERE HAS been given for construction of needed quarters and buildings $57 million. To the welfare department for housing the mentally sick and other state wards $59 million was given."

Lausche, in answer to question, said he was opposed to calling a state constitutional convention. Ohio voters may vote "yes" or "no" on this issue in the Nov. 4 election. The governor contended a "well-intentioned legislature" could vote out any antiquated provisions in the constitution.

His opponent, Charles A. Taft of Cincinnati, said the governor's pretense of being an "independent Democrat" was false.

"State political machines form the basis for the Democratic organization," Taft said. Lausche is "anything but an independent so far as the Democratic organization

The contract further provides that one member from the city must be a doctor of medicine, and that the mayor shall be president of the board. In order to make the city and county equal in the number of votes each has on the board, it is provided that the mayor shall vote only in the event of a tie vote.

The occupant of the office of mayor, as that office is created and established by the charter, shall become the president of the board of governors or the board of hospital commissioners. The joint contract referred to above provides that the board of commissioners shall consist of the same membership as the board of governors.

It is, however, a separate agency and is the one responsible for construction of repairs and improvements at the hospital.

The charter provides that council shall hereafter have the power to select the members of the board of governors in order to fill any vacancies occurring among the representatives of the city.

Gallipolis Site One Of 2 To Serve A-Plant

$400 Million Project To Be Shared By Unit In Southern Indiana

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—The world's largest steam-electric generating stations will be built near Gallipolis, Ohio, and Madison, Ind., to supply electricity to the new atomic center in Pike County, Ohio.

In Columbus, O., Gov. Frank J. Lausche said he understood the Ohio generating plant would be situated on an 800-acre site near Cheshire, Gallia County, 11 mi. northeast of Gallipolis.

Fifteen private electric companies, including the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co., which serves Circleville, joined forces to construct the greatest single block of power in the industry's history.

They have been planning the stations for months. Sites of the huge plants, however, were announced for the first time Wednesday.

The group of companies recently formed the Ohio Valley Electric Co. to carry out the project due to cost $400 million.

Construction of the plant near Gallipolis will be handled by Ohio Valley and the Madison plant by Indiana-Kentucky Electric Corp., an Ohio Valley subsidiary.

They chose Philip Sporn, president of American Gas and Electric Co., as head of both companies.

THE GENERATING stations will supply the full electric power requirements of the Atomic Energy Commission's $1.2 billion uranium diffusion plant, still to be built in Pike County. They will be called upon to provide 15 billion kilowatt hours annually.

The enormity of this power requirement is shown by the following comparisons:

Fifteen billion kilowatt hours is roughly 25 per cent more than the current annual consumption of New York City with its eight million people.

And it is roughly two-thirds of the annual electric power consumption of the entire highly industrialized state of Ohio.

It was estimated that 7½ million tons of coal will be needed at the generating plants. Coal storage yards will be among the largest in the country and will be developed to hold up to three million tons.

This background, Sporn pointed out, was among the reasons that exhaustive studies were necessary before the sites were chosen.

Sporn said many details of construction of the two plants have yet to be worked out. An announcement as to choice of engineers, he added, will be made within a few days.

However, Sporn said the corporation

Three Motorists Fined By Court

Three motorists were fined a total of $80 and costs Tuesday in the court of Mayor Ed Amey for traffic violations.

Percy Alexander of Cincinnati was fined $50 and costs for reckless operation following an accident on Route 62. He was arrested by State Highway Patrolman R. E. Brandon.

Harold Evans of Chillicothe was fined $20 and costs for speeding at 70 on Route 23. He was arrested by Patrolman W. D. Braucher.

And B. E. Parsons of Ripley, W. Va., was fined $10 and costs for crossing a yellow line on Route 23. He was arrested by Patrolman Bob Greene.

In contrast to the vicious battle for Sniper, Allied soldiers seized one hill position without a fight Wednesday.

Chinese Reds had battled grimly for the hill, near Iron Horse Mountain, all day Tuesday, but there was no resistance when the UN troops approached Wednesday.

Measured by Red casualties, the fighting this month is the heaviest since last November. The U. S. Eighth Army said 27,096 Reds were killed, wounded or captured in the first three weeks of October. Last November the toll was 44,729.

Allied warplanes pounded Communist positions at the front and deep in North Korea Wednesday.

THE FLEDGLING South Korean air force launched the first all-Rok close support strikes of the war.

Ten B29 Superforts Wednesday dropped 80 tons of 500-pound bombs on a Communist military headquarter near Sopo, on the outskirts of the Red Korean capital of Pyongyang. Pilots reported large explosions.

B26 Invader bombers attacked Red supply centers behind the lines Tuesday night. Marine and Air Force fighter-bombers Tuesday dumped 7,000 gallons of jellied gasoline on a Communist supply area east of Sinmak near the Korean west coast. Pilots said more than 15 buildings were destroyed.

"There was a military estimate made in September, 1947, and it had this conclusion—the military occupation of South Korea is not essential to the security of the United States."

He asked his audience: "And how was a top secret document released? Wouldn't you like to know? Many Americans would."

In Minneapolis Monday, Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon, a Republican who has bolted his party and has said he could not support Eisenhower, read a government memorandum to an audience at the University of Minnesota.

It was signed by the late James Forrestal, former secretary of defense, and was dated Sept. 26, 1947. One paragraph read:

"THE JOINT Chiefs of Staff consider that from a standpoint of military security, the U. S. has little strategic interest in maintaining the present troops and bases in Korea."

Eisenhower, as Army chief of staff at that time, was a member of the Joint Chiefs.

The argument over responsibility for the actions that led up to the Korean war has been raging back and forth with increasing bitterness. It centers on this:

President Truman and other Democrats claim Eisenhower, as Army chief of staff, bears part of the responsibility for decisions affecting American policy in the Far East.

Eisenhower, in reply, says the Joint Chiefs made purely military estimates, at the request of the administration. He has emphasized his argument that a vast difference exists between such military estimates and political decisions.

And he has accused Secretary of State Dean Acheson of making a major blunder in announcing,

OHIO TO GET HUGE POWER GENERATOR

Guard Passes Checkup, Held On Fire Alert

Circleville's National Guard unit announced Wednesday it had passed the annual inspection by representatives of the 2nd Army and that seven new members have lately joined the local ranks.

Company I, 166th Infantry has been on "standby alert" here since last Friday, awaiting a possible call to aid in fighting forest fires in Southern Ohio.

Major John McGrown, adjutant of the 166th, said the Circleville company is probably next in line for such a call if forest fires become a major threat again in this region.

National Guardsmen in southern Ohio were called out some time ago to battle fires in that sector. Had it not been due to stand the inspection, Company I would have also been moved to the scene of that emergency.

THIRTEEN MEN have enlisted for duty with Company I during the last two months. The seven who joined during recent weeks were: Dorsey Bosworth, William Brungs, Donald Olney, Paul Wood, Joseph Sweeney, Jack McCain, and Charles Wolfe. All but McCain, a resident of Amanda, are from Circleville.

None of the seven has had previous service.

Scouts To March In Spook Parade

An extra feature to Wednesday's Halloween parade in Circleville will be provided by local Boy Scouts and Cub Scouts.

Boy Scouts and Cub Scouts will march in the parade with their "Liberty Bell" float which they exhibited during Pumpkin Show.

The big parade, sponsored by Circleville Chamber of Commerce and directed by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, will form at about 7 p. m. Wednesday at the Courthouse.

Scene of the judging has been shifted from Memorial Hall to the Armory, meaning an addition to the parade route.

Beginning at the Courthouse, costumed paraders will march behind the Circleville high school band on Franklin street to Scioto, Scioto to Main, Main east to Pickaway street, Pickaway to Franklin and to the Armory.

A total of $125 in cash prizes await those who costume themselves and join in the parade.

The parade is held on Wednesday, two days before Halloween, because of the Circleville-Westerville football game Thursday and dismissal of schools Friday for a teachers' meeting.

Stolen Car Used In Stealing Gas

Pickaway County authorities were called upon late Tuesday to investigate an incident where men in a stolen car drove from a city filling station without paying their gas bill.

Deputy Walter Richards said he was called out at about 10 p. m. Tuesday on a report by Spur Oil Co., West Main street.

The attendant there said a convertible pulled up and $3 worth of gas was put into the tank. Then the driver asked for some matches, and while the attendant went inside for matches the car drove off.

Later, it was learned the car had been stolen from Chillicothe. The auto was not overtaken.

3 Top Ohio Candidates Press Campaigns In Vital Cleveland

COLUMBUS, Oct. 29.—Three of Ohio's four top political candidates were campaigning in Cleveland Wednesday for the second straight day.

Charles P. Taft, Republican candidate for governor, was the lone dissenter. He was scheduled for appearances at five GOP rallies in Cincinnati.

Democratic Gov. Frank J. Lausche, GOP Sen. John W. Bricker and the latter's Democratic opponent, Michael V. DiSalle, all were appearing in Cleveland. All four made Cleveland speeches Tuesday.

Lausche said the state's road construction program tops the program of all states. The governor also lauded state building during his tenure. He said:

"In five and one half years of my administration, without imposing any new taxes and solely out of savings, there has been invested in buildings and other property the sum of $149,220,000 for the six state universities.

"THERE HAS been given for construction of needed quarters and buildings $57 million. To the welfare department for housing the mentally sick and other state wards $59 million was given."

Lausche, in answer to question, said he was opposed to calling a state constitutional convention. Ohio voters may vote "yes" or "no" on this issue in the Nov. 4 election. The governor contended a "well-intentioned legislature" could vote out any antiquated provisions in the constitution.

His opponent, Charles A. Taft of Cincinnati, said the governor's pretense of being an "independent Democrat" was false.

"State political machines form the basis for the Democratic organization," Taft said. Lausche is "anything but an independent so far as the Democratic organization

City Charter—Step By Step

The charter commission, in its deliberations with regard to the affairs of government peculiar to the city of Circleville, decided the present structure providing for operation of Berger hospital should not be disturbed.

It was the considered opinion of the commission that the current management of the hospital has proved so successful, under the contract establishing joint city-county participation, that nothing should be done to alter the arrangement in so far as the city is concerned.

Therefore, in Section 95 of the charter, it is provided that the ordinance previously passed by the council, providing for the city to join with Pickaway County in the control and operation of the hospital, shall be continued in effect in the same manner and form under the charter.

The joint city-county contract, under which the hospital is presently operated, became effective in May, 1949. By the terms of the contract, the board of governors, the operating agency, shall consist of nine members.

The contract further provides that one member from the city must be a doctor of medicine, and that the mayor shall be president of the board. In order to make the city and county equal in the number of votes each has on the board, it is provided that the mayor shall vote only in the event of a tie vote.

The occupant of the office of mayor, as that office is created and established by the charter, shall become the president of the board of governors or the board of hospital commissioners. The joint contract referred to above provides that the board of commissioners shall consist of the same membership as the board of governors.

It is, however, a separate agency and the one responsible for construction of repairs and improvements at the hospital.

The charter provides that council shall hereafter have the power to select the members of the board of governors in order to fill any vacancies occurring among the representatives of the city.

Gallipolis Site One Of 2 To Serve A-Plant

$400 Million Project To Be Shared By Unit In Southern Indiana

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—The world's largest steam-electric generating stations will be built near Gallipolis, Ohio, and Madison, Ind., to supply electricity to the new atomic center in Pike County, Ohio.

In Columbus, O., Gov. Frank J. Lausche said he understood the Ohio generating plant would be situated on an 800-acre site near Cheshire, Gallia County, 11 mi. northeast of Gallipolis.

Fifteen private electric companies, including the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co., which services Circleville, joined forces to construct the greatest single block of power in the industry's history.

They have been planning the stations for months. Sites of the huge plants, however, were announced for the first time Wednesday.

The group of companies recently formed the Ohio Valley Electric Co. to carry out the project due to cost $400 million.

Construction of the plant near Gallipolis will be handled by Ohio Valley and the Madison plant by Indiana-Kentucky Electric Corp., an Ohio Valley subsidiary.

They chose Philip Sporn, president of American Gas and Electric Co., as head of both companies.

THE GENERATING stations will supply the full electric power requirements of the Atomic Energy Commission's $1.2 billion uranium diffusion plant, still to be built in Pike County. They will be called upon to provide 15 billion kilowatt hours annually.

The enormity of this power requirement is shown by the following comparisons.

Fifteen billion kilowatt hours is roughly 25 per cent more than the current annual consumption of New York City with its eight million people.

And it is roughly two-thirds of the annual electric power consumption of the entire highly industrialized state of Ohio.

It was estimated that 7½ million tons of coal will be needed at the generating plants. Coal storage yards will be among the largest in the country and will be developed to hold up to three million tons.

This background, Sporn pointed out, was among the reasons that exhaustive studies were necessary before the sites were chosen.

Sporn said many details of construction of the two plants have yet to be worked out. An announcement as to choice of engineers, he added, will be made within a few days.

However, Sporn said the corpora-

Three Motorists Fined By Court

Three motorists were fined a total of $80 and costs Tuesday in the court of Mayor Ed Amey for traffic violations.

Percy Alexander of Cincinnati was fined $50 and costs for reckless operation following an accident on Route 62. He was arrested by State Highway Patrolman R. E. Brandon.

Harold Evans of Chillicothe was fined $20 and costs for speeding at 70 on Route 23. He was arrested by Patrolman W. D. Braucher.

And B. E. Parsons of Ripley, W. Va., was fined $10 and costs for crossing a yellow line on Route 23. He was arrested by Patrolman Bob Greene.

Anti-Charter Forces Attack 'Blank Check'

body can run for council under the charter as long as he or she has the petition behind them—and nobody is going to say who can run and who can't.

"Furthermore, I don't quite understand what they mean by this high calibre talk. What do they mean when they say the REAL city leaders?"

"What is a REAL city leader? Is he measured by money, or what?"

Cook reminded the voters that under the present system of government they are "guaranteed representation for every section of the city" and declared that this assurance can not be had under the charter.

"If, in the state government, it's considered a good policy to guarantee every county representation—and I think it is—why is it not a good policy to guarantee every section of the city a representative on council?"

"CIRCLEVILLE'S population is now concentrated heaviest in the northern sections of the city. This means, under the voting plan offered by the charter, that the North-end could obtain lopsided representation powers and hence control council—and the city, because the city manager would be responsible to council."

"It would be possible—just to illustrate the point—for all seven councilmen to live in seven adjoining houses in the Northend. And that, to me, just isn't Democracy!"

A recent statement by the Citizens Committee, key group for the pro-charter forces, accused anti-charter spokesmen of "misinformation tactics" in spreading the claim that the charter would "deprive citizens of the right to vote."

Touching upon this point, Cook said:

"The charter plan deprives a man of his right to vote for the three top municipal officers: the administrator, the chief legal officer and the chief financial officer. This, to my mind, is depriving a man of his right to vote to any extent that he can exercise the control intended for him in a Democracy."

"The reply to this will probably be that if council didn't behave the way the citizens of Circleville wanted it to behave, the voters could always bring about a change. But the pro-charter forces know, even when they give that so-called assurance, that it would take eight years to get a complete change-over in council!"

"I contend that there's nothing in what the charter offers to repay a man for giving up his right to vote for the chief officers of his city."

COOK ALSO asserted that, although the city manager is described as the "administrator" under the charter system, he would be "under the control of council throughout and consequently nothing more than a straw man for that body."

This, he added, would mean that council—in addition to being the legislative body—would also maintain administrative control of the city government.

"The basic idea of America's form of government," Cook said, "operates on the idea of a division between the legislative and administrative. I see no reason in the world why the people of Circleville, therefore, should be asked to amalgamate both these parts of their government as urged under the charter."

"With such control vested in them, councilmen under the charter would be more than mere legislative agents. They'd be guardians of the people in a sense the people never intended—just as though the people were judged incompetent in probate court!"

Cook then turned to the Citizens Committee's claim that an anti-charter worker was recently "converted" to the plan when allegedly false information had been corrected. The committee's assertion was based upon an incident that occurred in the south end of the city. No names were published.

"It's very possible," Cook said, "that somebody misunderstood something that I said or somebody else said against the charter plan. For instance, he may have understood me to say that it would not permit him to have any vote at all. This of course I didn't say."

"HOWEVER, UNLESS we know the man referred to, and unless we know what sense of responsibility he has—and other details of the case—it's obviously impossible to judge what took place. And the charge that false information was given therefore means nothing, since there was no way left to answer it."

"Indeed, it could all be a myth—and the man they say was converted could be mythical, too!"

Asked if selection of the charter commission by the voters last November did not imply that the majority of Circleville citizens want the proposed charter plan, Cook replied:

"Certainly not. In the first place the charter at that time was little more than a term. Nothing was defined. It couldn't be. It was just an idea."

"Later, when the charter was outlined, people had their first opportunity to decide whether they want it or not—and that's why you hear so much talk against it. They don't want the proposed plan."

"Also, at the time the charter commission was selected, the widespread impression among the voters was that it was being set up merely to study different forms of government—charter, commission or some closer variation of what we have now. There was no general idea at that time that the voters were casting their ballots for the charter plan as now proposed."

COOK WAS asked if, regardless of disputed merits, the charter plan isn't worth a trial. It was pointed out the plan could be discarded if the voters decided they didn't like the results.

"It's a lot harder to junk the charter plan than anyone realizes," he said. "While it's true that could be done through referendum, there are many uncertain factors that could come into such a picture. And it would depend a good deal on what sort of cooperation you were getting out of city council."

Cook declared the charter plan "comes dangerously close to what I term an oligarchy. And I'm not interested in an oligarchy. I'm interested in promoting Democracy."

"Whenever a crisis comes in any government—as for example it did for the nation in the days of 1933—the only way it's most satisfactorily settled is by spreading the base of the Democracy and not by contracting it."

"By 'spreading the base of Democracy,' I mean to set up methods by which the people can govern their own way out of their problems. And I feel they're capable of doing just that."

Pro-Charter Group Names Supporters

spreading deep into the ranks of the electorate.

Anti-charter forces up until this time have aimed much of their attack at the relatively small number of individuals identified on the charter side from day to day. The new move presumably is destined to "pull the rug" from beneath that criticism.

Spokesmen for the charter forces explained no concerted effort was made to list public leaders for the city manager proposal prior to this time in order to allow full opportunity for study and decision by the individuals involved.

This was done, they said, not only out of respect for individual freedom of views but also to insure that the men listed will be able to stand definitely as charter supporters.

Publicly listed charter leaders may then serve to guide those voters who are still undecided and waiting to see others lined up for the proposal.

There seems to be considerable evidence that a large portion of the local electorate has yet to decide finally on the issue. Continued silence by many voters in public, the reluctance of some large organizations to discuss the charter in meeting and conflicting reports obtained through test vote polls were taken as surface symptoms of widespread indecision.

Pro-charter leaders have emphasized that no effort is being made at this time to list the plan's full strength. They explain such strategy would not be feasible in advance of election and that, in many cases, individuals who favor the charter claim they cannot publicly

DEATHS And Funerals

MRS. ANNA AUGUST
Mrs. Anna Cross August, a former resident of Pickaway County, died Monday in Springfield, Ill.

She is survived by three grandsons, Owen Carpenter of Columbus, Walter Carpenter of Rock Falls, Ill., and Llewellyn Carpenter of Stonington, Ill.; six great grandchildren; four sisters; and three brothers.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Friday in A. J. Hott Funeral Home, Commercial Point. Burial will be in Darbyville cemetery by George Finch.

Friends may call in the funeral home Thursday afternoon.

School Honor Unit Planning For 1953

Plans for 1953 were discussed here Tuesday night at the regular meeting of Pickaway County Honor Society's general committee. The society draws its members from the ranks of outstanding local high school students.

Graduate members are also listed.

Mildred Paul, commercial and home-ag teacher at New Holland, was elected secretary.

Wanda Ogle of Perry Township school was chosen to succeed Betty Krimmel as student secretary for the group. Miss Krimmel recently moved from Jackson Township to the city of Circleville.

COUNTY Superintendent of Schools George D. McDowell is chairman of the society's general committee. Other members are:

Supt. Kenneth Craig of New Holland; C. E. Mahaffey of Ashville-Harrison school; Supt. Howard Hosler of Walnut; Supt. Robert Moyer of Jackson; C. D. Bennett of Darby; Miss Alice Delong of Saltercreek; Miss Ida Ware of Deer creek; Supt. Loren Straight of Monroe; Miss Mildred Wertman of Pickaway; Supt. Theodore E. Snyder of Scioto, and Mrs. John Hardin of Perry.

Furthermore, spokesmen for the charter group add, it would be impossible to give such a complete list since purpose of the current action is to help lead undecided voters make their choice. And that many of the latter will not make their final decision until on or near election day.

Ike Says 'Dems Bare Document'

later, that the "defense perimeter" of the United States in the Far East did not embrace either Korea or Formosa.

Eisenhower is keeping the Korean War in the forefront as his most powerful area of attack during these closing days of the campaign. The general tells virtually every audience:

1. An honorable peace in Korea will be his first objective if he is elected.

2. REGARDLESS of Democratic taunts and criticisms, he is determined to go up to the Korean front himself if he wins next Tuesday's election.

3. The Truman administration has blundered there, and everywhere, in its foreign policies of the past seven years.

He will appear at 10 p. m. Wednesday on a CBS TV-radio program.

Stevenson cut loose his latest charge at Eisenhower during a rally Tuesday night in Madison Square Garden where he asserted his Republican opponent had capitulated to those who champion a "dear, departed quiet past that is all so dead."

He said of the Republicans:

"They have everything on their side except the people, and so our Republican friends celebrate all of their conquests and triumphs in advance of the election."

"They win all of the battles except the last one, but the big one is the last—as all generals should know. It comes in November, and that is when they discover that the most powerful publishers, the loudest commentators, and the noisiest demagogues are each, by the blessed rules of our Democracy, entitled to cast one vote—even as you and I."

Stevenson went on to say that the nation had cheered when Eisenhower was chosen GOP presidential nominee over Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio. He said:

"AS THE NATION cheered, the Republican Party cast out its old and weary rigid leadership and turned instead to a man whose name had become a national symbol of high purpose."

"History will record too, however, that the spark which had been kindled in the higher desires of thousands of our Republican friends was then snuffed out in a sordid triumph of expedience over principle. These hopes and aspirations were shaken to their roots when the Republican crusader said 'I do' to the lifelong cheerleader for a dear-departed quiet past that is all so dead."

This was another reference by Stevenson in his repeated accusations that Eisenhower had become the captive of Taft.

He lashed Eisenhower for what he said was an alliance with the Old Guard of the Republican Party. He said many people "are now disheartened by this negotiated peace with the enemy."

"It has been part of the price of that surrender," he said, "that much of the purpose of this campaign and of this election has been lost—for us as well as them."

At another point, he tore into Eisenhower for the pledges the general has made in connection with efforts to end the Korean war in event he is elected. He said Eisenhower has given assurances "that a great general will somehow continue to deal with these problems fairly and justly."

Then he said:

"It is in no disrespect that we say this is not only too little—it is dangerously too much. A Democracy cannot afford to make its elective process simply a determination to rely on the unrevealed wisdom of one man. History offers too many warnings against that course."

Gallipolis Site One Of 2 To Serve A-Plant

tion will break ground in the very near future for both plants.

HE EXPECTS the first 200,000 kilowatt unit at the Indiana plant will be in operation in a little more than two years, in January 1955.

After that, he said, completion dates for the remainder of the units will be on a staggered schedule with all 11 units at the plants on the lines by June 1956.

Sporn said cost of the two plants will be an estimated $400 million. The estimated cost of the Madison plant, he added, will be $175 million and the Gallipolis plant $145 million.

Combined capacity of the plants will be 2.2 million kilowatts, of which 1.8 million kilowatts has been contracted for by the AEC for a 25-year period.

The extra kilowatts in capacity are to provide a cushion for regular maintenance and overhaul. During abnormal emergencies the capacity will be further supplemented by about 200,000 kilowatts from the 15-companies' stations.

The Indiana plant will consist of six turbo-generating units of 200,000 kilowatts each. The Ohio plant will have five units of the same capacity.

The power generated will be delivered over 330,000 volt transmission lines — equal to the highest voltage now planned anywhere in the United States.

Four double circuits will run from the power plants to the AEC project, two from each plant. The two from the Madison plant will be routed via a switching station to be built in the general area of Cincinnati.

IN ADDITION to the direct super-high-voltage lines from the two power plants to the diffusion center, the supply of electric energy will be "backed up" by the existing integrated high-voltage electric transmission systems of the 15 participants in Ohio Valley Electric Corp. Each company of this group is directly or indirectly interconnected with every other company in the group and all of them operate in parallel with other systems which together constitute the largest interconnected transmission network in the United States.

Ohio Valley Electric Corp. previously had announced that two plants, instead of one plant, would be built. However, announcement of their exact locations had been delayed pending drilling tests and completion of arrangements for coal, transportation and other fundamental problems.

The A. E. C. power requirements were divided between two plants for several reasons. They include:

1. Security — The power source was decentralized in event of war or disaster of nature, such as major flood or fire;
2. Early completion — By constructing two plants simultaneously, earlier completion of each individual unit could be accomplished, as well as the entire capacity of all 11 units;
3. Coal — Two plants, widely separated, enables tapping of several major coal fields, particularly West Kentucky-Indiana, and East Ohio-Appalachian, rather than just one.

4. Availability of interim power — The new transmission lines to connect the two power plants and the A.E.C. project will be completed faster than the power plants themselves. Thus, by tying these new lines into the existing facilities of the participating utilities, they can be utilized for interim power as well as for permanent power—and with no duplication of lines.

THE OHIO Valley Electric Corp. was formed Oct. 1 and its officers elected and an executive committee named Oct. 9. The power agreement with A.E.C. was executed Oct. 15.

The 15 electric utility sponsor companies are as follows: Appalachian Electric Power Co., Indiana and Michigan Electric Co. and The Ohio Power Co., all subsidiaries of American Gas and Electric Co.; Monongahela Power Co., West Penn Power Co. and Potomac Edison Co., all subsidiaries of The West Penn Electric Co.; Ohio Edison Co.; Pennsylvania Power Co., subsidiary of Ohio Edison; The Cincinnati Gas and Electric Co.; Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co.; The Toledo Edison Co.; Louisville Gas and Electric Co.; Kentucky Utilities Co.; The Dayton Power and Light Co.; and Southern Indiana Gas and Electric Co.

Local Teachers Due To Attend COTA Confab

There will be a forenoon session or general meeting of our teachers in Ohio State Coliseum beginning at 9 a. m. Friday and closing at 11:30 a. m. with thirty sectional gatherings and sixteen luncheons.

These programs were arranged under the direction of Association Officers Fred C. Slager of Columbus, David R. Smith of Delaware, Merrill M. Berry of Chillicothe, Miss Mary B. Hanna of a bery of Springfield, Walter Arnolt of Columbus, Miss Grace Griffith of Lancaster and Dwight Pilkington of Marion.

Principal speakers at the general session, which will be held at 9 a. m. Friday will be Dr. Jesse Stuart, farmer, writer, and poet from the hill country of Kentucky, author of "The Thread That Runs So True," whose subject will be "Education and American Democracy;" and Walton B. Bliss, executive secretary of the Ohio Education Association, whose subject will be "What's Up in School Legislation?"

Practically every public school and many private schools in all 22 counties, 25 cities and 13 exempted villages in the central Ohio district will be closed Friday, in order that teachers may attend this convention.

Columbus city schools will act as host for the meeting with a local arranging committee under the direction of Stanley Gingery, assistant superintendent of schools. Music for the general session has been arranged by Kenneth Keller, supervisor of music in Columbus.

Bricker told a rally the nation's only hope was to get out of Korea by electing Republican Dwight D. Eisenhower President.

"The New Deal can offer nothing but a continuation of the present program of ever-mounting casualties in Korea," he said.

IN ANOTHER speech, the senator said the "American people want to stop the onrushing power of government." He added:

"We are coming to the end of a serious and strenuous campaign in which the chief issue is whether the American people want to stop the onrushing power of government, that power which is the greatest danger of all to human liberty."

Disalle, Bricker's Democratic opponent, told AFL carpenter union leaders he favored a number of amendments to the 1947 labor-management law. In his 20-minute talk he never called it by its common name, the Taft-Hartley law.

"You can't divorce labor and management," Disalle said. "You have to lay down rules for both of them, rules that are for the public welfare. If you don't, you will be destroying our whole conception of free enterprise."

He said he favored a more drastic definition of "emergency disputes" where the government can halt a strike for a "cooling-off" period. He added the cooling-off period, which he said often was a heating-up period, should be cut.

Anti-Charter Forces Attack 'Blank Check'

body can run for council under the charter as long as he or she has the petition behind them—and nobody is going to say who can run and who can't.

"Furthermore, I don't quite understand what they mean by this high calibre talk. What do they mean when they say the REAL city leaders?"

"What is a REAL city leader? Is he measured by money, or what?"

Cook reminded the voters that under the present system of government they are "guaranteed of representation for every section of the city" and declared that this assurance can not be had under the charter.

"If, in the state government, it's considered a good policy to guarantee every county representation—and I think it is—why is it not a good policy to guarantee every section of the city a representative on council?"

"CIRCLEVILLE'S population is now concentrated heaviest in the northern sections of the city. This means, under the voting plan offered by the charter, that the North-end could obtain lopsided representation powers and hence control council—and the city, because the city manager would be responsible to council."

"It would be possible—just to illustrate the point—for all seven councilmen to live in seven adjoining houses in the North-end. And that, to me, just isn't Democracy!"

A recent statement by the Citizens Committee, key group for the pro-charter forces, accused anti-charter spokesmen of "misinformation tactics" in spreading the claim that the charter would "deprive citizens of the right to vote."

Touching upon this point, Cook said:

"The charter plan deprives a man of his right to vote for the three top municipal officers: the administrator, the chief legal officer and the chief financial officer. This, to my mind, is depriving a man of his right to vote to any extent that he can exercise the control intended for him in a Democracy."

"The reply to this will probably be that if council didn't behave the way the citizens of Circleville wanted it to behave, the voters could always bring about a change. But the pro-charter forces know, even when they give that so-called assurance, that it would take eight years to get a complete change-over in council!"

"I contend that there's nothing in what the charter offers to repay a man for giving up his right to vote for the chief officers of his city."

COOK ALSO asserted that, although the city manager is described as the "administrator" under the charter system, he would be "under the control of council throughout and consequently nothing more than a straw man for that body."

This, he added, would mean that council—in addition to being the legislative body—would also maintain administrative control of the city government.

"The basic idea of America's form of government," Cook said, "operates on the idea of a division between the legislative and administrative. I see no reason in the world why the people of Circleville, therefore, should be asked to amalgamate both these parts of their government as urged under the charter."

"With such control vested in them, councilmen under the charter would be more than mere legislative agents. They'd be guardians of the people in a sense the people never intended—just as though the people were judged incompetent in probate court!"

Cook then turned to the Citizens Committee's claim that an anti-charter worker was recently "converted" to the plan when allegedly false information had been corrected. The committee's assertion was based upon an incident that occurred in the south end of the city. No names were published.

"It's very possible," Cook said, "that somebody misunderstood something that I said or somebody else said against the charter plan. For instance, he may have understood me to say that it would not permit him to have any vote at all. This of course I didn't say."

"HOWEVER, UNLESS we know the man referred to, and unless we know what sense of responsibility he has—and other details of the case—it's obviously impossible to judge what took place. And the charge that false information was given therefore means nothing, since there was no way left to answer it."

"Indeed, it could all be a myth—and the man they say was converted could be mythical, too!"

Asked if selection of the charter commission by the voters last November did not imply that the majority of Circleville citizens want the proposed charter plan, Cook replied:

"Certainly not. In the first place the charter at that time was little more than a term. Nothing was defined. It couldn't be. It was just an idea."

"Later, when the charter was outlined, people had their first opportunity to decide whether they want it or not—and that's why you hear so much talk against it. They don't want the proposed plan."

"Also, at the time the charter commission was selected, the widespread impression among the voters was that it was being set up merely to study different forms of government—charter, commission or some closer variation of what we have now. There was no general idea at that time that the voters were casting their ballots for the charter plan as now proposed."

COOK was asked if, regardless of disputed merits, the charter plan isn't worth a trial. It was pointed out the plan could be discarded if the voters decided they didn't like the results.

"It's a lot harder to junk the charter plan than anyone realizes," he said. "While it's true that could be done through referendum, there are many uncertain factors that could come into such a picture. And it would depend a good deal on what sort of cooperation you were getting out of city council."

Cook declared the charter plan "comes dangerously close to what I term an oligarchy. And I'm not interested in an oligarchy. I'm interested in promoting Democracy."

"Whenever a crisis comes in any government—as for example it did for the nation in the days of 1933—the only way it's most satisfactorily settled is by spreading the base of the Democracy and not by contracting it."

"By 'spreading the base of Democracy,' I mean to set up methods by which the people can govern their own way out of their problems. And I feel they're capable of doing just that."

Pro-Charter Group Names Supporters

spreading deep into the ranks of the electorate.

Anti-charter forces up until this time have aimed much of their attack at the relatively small number of individuals identified on the charter side from day to day. The new move presumably is destined to "pull the rug" from beneath that criticism.

Spokesmen for the charter forces explained no concerted effort was made to list public leaders for the city manager proposal prior to this time in order to allow full opportunity for study and decision by the individuals involved.

This was done, they said, not only out of respect for individual freedom of views but also to insure that the men listed will be able to stand definitely as charter supporters.

Publicly listed charter leaders may then serve to guide those voters who are still undecided and waiting to see others lined up for the proposal.

There seems to be considerable evidence that a large portion of the local electorate has yet to decide finally on the issue. Continued silence by many voters in public, the reluctance of some large organizations to discuss the charter in meeting and conflicting reports obtained through test vote polls were taken as surface symptoms of widespread indecision.

Pro-charter leaders have emphasized that no effort is being made at this time to list the plan's full strength. They explain such strategy would not be feasible in advance of election and that, in many cases, individuals who favor the charter claim they cannot publicly later, that the "defense perimeter" of the United States in the Far East did not embrace either Korea or Formosa.

Ike Says 'Dems Bare Document'

Eisenhower is keeping the Korean War in the forefront as his most powerful area of attack during these closing days of the campaign. The general tells virtually every audience:

1. An honorable peace in Korea will be his first objective if he is elected.

2. REGARDLESS of Democratic taunts and criticisms, he is determined to go up to the Korean front himself if he wins next Tuesday's election.

3. The Truman administration has blundered there, and everywhere, in its foreign policies of the past seven years.

He will appear at 10 p. m. Wednesday on a CBS TV-radio program.

Stevenson cut loose his latest charge at Eisenhower during a rally Tuesday night in Madison Square Garden where he asserted his Republican opponent had capitulated to those who champion a "dear, departed quiet past that is all so dead."

He said of the Republicans:

"They have everything on their side except the people, and so our Republican friends celebrate all of their conquests and triumphs in advance of the election."

"They win all of the battles except the last one, but the big one is the last—as all generals should know. It comes in November, and that is when they discover that the most powerful publishers, the loudest commentators, and the noisiest demagogues are each, by the blessed rules of our Democracy, entitled to cast one vote—even as you and I."

Stevenson went on to say that the nation had cheered when Eisenhower was chosen GOP presidential nominee over Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio. He said:

"AS THE NATION cheered, the REPUBLICAN Party cast out its old and weary rigid leadership and turned instead to a man whose name had become a national symbol of high purpose."

"History will record too, however, that the spark which had been kindled in the higher desires of thousands of our Republican friends was then snuffed out in a sordid triumph of expedience over principle. These hopes and aspirations were shaken to their roots when the Republican crusader said 'I do' to the lifelong cheerleader for a dear-departed quiet past that is all so dead."

This was another reference by Stevenson in his repeated accusations that Eisenhower had become the captive of Taft.

He lashed Eisenhower for what he said was an alliance with the Old Guard of the Republican Party. He said many people "are now disheartened by this negotiated peace with the enemy."

"It has been part of the price of that surrender," he said, "that much of the purpose of this campaign and of this election has been lost—for us as well as them."

At another point, he tore into Eisenhower for the pledges the general has made in connection with efforts to end the Korean war in event he is elected. He said Eisenhower has given assurances "that a great general will somehow continue to deal with these problems fairly and justly."

Then he said:

"It is in no disrespect that we say this is not only too little—it is dangerously too much. A Democracy cannot afford to make its elective process simply a determination to rely on the unrevealed wisdom of one man. History offers too many warnings against that course."

tion will break ground in the very near future for both plants.

HE EXPECTS the first 200,000 kilowatt unit at the Indiana plant will be in operation in a little more than two years, in January 1955.

After that, he said, completion dates for the remainder of the units will be on a staggered schedule with all 11 units at the plants on the lines by June 1956.

Sporn said cost of the two plants will be an estimated $400 million. The estimated cost of the Madison plant, he added, will be $175 million and the Gallipolis plant $145 million.

Combined capacity of the plants will be 2.2 million kilowatts, of which 1.8 million kilowatts has been contracted for by the AEC for a 25-year period.

The extra kilowatts in capacity are to provide a cushion for regular maintenance and overhaul. During abnormal emergencies the capacity will be further supplemented by about 200,000 kilowatts from the 15 companies' stations.

The Indiana plant will consist of six turbo-generating units of 200,000 kilowatts each. The Ohio plant will have five units of the same capacity.

The power generated will be delivered over 330,000 volt transmission lines — equal to the highest voltage now planned anywhere in the United States.

Four double circuits will run from the power plants to the AEC project, two from each plant. The two from the Madison plant will be routed via a switching station to be built in the general area of Cincinnati.

IN ADDITION to the direct super-high-voltage lines from the two power plants to the diffusion center, the supply of electric energy will be "backed up" by the existing integrated high-voltage electric transmission systems of the 15 participants in Ohio Valley Electric Corp. Each company of this group is directly or indirectly interconnected with every other company in the group and all of them operate in parallel with other systems which together constitute the largest interconnected transmission network in the United States.

Ohio Valley Electric Corp. previously had announced that two plants, instead of one plant, would be built. However, announcement of their exact locations had been delayed pending drilling tests and completion of arrangements for coal, transportation and other fundamental problems.

The A. E. C. power requirements were divided between two plants for several reasons. They include:

1. Security — The power source was decentralized in event of war or disaster of nature, such as major flood or fire;
2. Early completion — By constructing two plants simultaneously, earlier completion of each individual unit could be accomplished, as well as the entire capacity of all 11 units;
3. Coal — Two plants, widely separated, would be able to draw from the coal fields of the West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia, Florida, and Mississippi basins.

Local Teachers Due To Attend COTA Confab

Teachers in Circleville and Pickaway County schools will join with thousands of other central Ohio instructors Friday in the 81st annual Central Ohio Teachers' Association meeting in Columbus.

All local schools will be closed Friday, a vacation for the pupils and an opportunity for the teachers to attend the convention.

There will be a forenoon session or general meeting of our teachers in Ohio State Coliseum beginning at 9 a. m. Friday and closing at 11:30 a. m. with thirty sectional gatherings and sixteen luncheons.

These programs were arranged under the direction of Association Officers Fred C. Slager of Columbus, David R. Smith of Delaware, Merrill M. Berry of Chillicothe, Miss Mary B. Hannabery of Springfield, Walter Arnolt of Columbus, Miss Grace Griffith of Lancaster and Dwight Pilkington of Marion.

Principal speakers at the general session, which will be held at 9 a. m. ## Boy Scouts Ready For 'Vote' Drive

First phase of the Boy Scouts' "Get Out the Vote" campaign began last Spring when Scouts placed attractive four-color posters on public display.

The poster shows a Cub Scout, Boy Scout and Explorer enthusiastically calling, "Hey, register and vote" while the two older boys punctuate this appeal by ringing bells.

Boy Scouts, Cub Scouts and Explorers of the Pickaway District have displayed a total of 50 posters, according to Dave Orr, chairman of the camping and activities committee.

Orr said he expects about 250 Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts and Explorers will be on the job early Saturday to hang the "Liberty Bell" cut-out on the doorknobs of about 5,000 homes in this area.

IN MANY communities, Boy Scouts will ask householders to turn on their porch lights on Monday evening, to indicate their intention to vote.

Scout leaders believe that organized boyhood can exert a strong influence among parents, relatives and neighbors in doing their share in rolling up a record vote this year.

Orr added that, while the campaign hopes to stimulate adults to meet their responsibilities of good citizenship by voting, the Scouts themselves will also get a lesson in their duty to vote when they come of age.

CHS Juniors Begin Work On Annual Play

Circleville high school juniors are beginning study upon "The Curious Savage," annual class play which will be seen Dec. 4 and 5 in the school auditorium.

The "Savage" of this fantasy is no uncivilized cannibal but a genteel old lady of wealth named Ethel Savage, curious in a charming way. Her eccentricity is a belief in the right of people to indulge their foolish desires.

Ethel Savage recognizes how desperately people need to do this occasionally. She has dyed her hair blue—"because it goes with anything." Also, she once bought a tomb for a horse and wrote a play in which she starred herself.

A ten million dollar heiress, the "curious Savage" decided to do all the silly things she'd always wanted to do. She's determined to set up a "Happiness Fund" designed to put her millions to work helping people do silly foolish things.

IN ORDER to keep her from wasting the family fortune, her three stepchildren have her thrust into a retreat for a group of people who have fled reality.

Ethel outwits her grasping family and confirms her belief in the wisdom of indulging pillaged whims through living with her new-found friends, the people who "nev-

Zanesville Fish, Folk Jolted By Explosion

ZANESVILLE, Oct. 29.—Explosion of nearly a ton of dynamite in the Muskingum River here Tuesday stunned fish and residents alike.

The Ohio Pipeline Construction Co. of Granville set off the charge to blast a 12-inch gas main trench for the Ohio Fuel Gas Co.

The explosion shot geysers of water 2,000 feet into the air, drenching rooftops 100 feet from the river.

Police Lt. George Hodgson estimated the blast caused several hundred thousand dollars damage in broken windows and foundations in nearby homes, buildings and factories. Thousands of fish in the river were killed or stunned. A 79-year-old woman invalid was thrown from her bed.

Residents flooded the police station, newspapers and radio stations with telephone calls.

Police halted further blasting. The company did not say why it used dynamite to clear the gas main trench. Monday, the company set off two 500-pound test jolts.

Tuesday took under advisement a motion to continue for three weeks hearing on the application of the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton railroad to eliminate passenger service on two mixed passenger and freight trains between Springfield and Jackson.

The motion came from William Junk, Washington C. H. city solicitor, who said Civil Defense authorities want more time to study the situation. Two points served by the train are Waverly and Beaver in Pike County, near the site where the government will build a $1.2 billion atomic energy plant.

Davis Named To Head Christmas Seal Sale During Annual Confab

Ray W. Davis, Circleville attorney, was named Tuesday as chairman for the 1952 Christmas Seal sale drive for the Pickaway County Tuberculosis and Health Association.

Davis was named to the post by Mrs. Howard Schumm, president of the group, during the Association's annual dinner meeting in Mecca restaurant.

This year's Seal sale will begin on Thanksgiving, Mrs. Schumm said.

During the meeting, Mrs. Evelyn Hafee, executive secretary for the group, reported the program of free chest x-rays held here in early October cost $1,654.25 for the films, while additional funds will be required for the reading of the films.

FUNDS FOR the x-ray program, in which 2,556 persons participated, were from last year's Christmas Seal sale drive.

SHOOTING TOO GOOD? FASCINATING IN ITS incompleteness is a brief news story, about a Frank Walsh of West Hempstead, N. Y., who fired a bullet in anger into his television set. Did he shoot for the right reasons?

There have been times when others felt similar impulses, always sternly suppressed as the cost of a new picture tube passed through their mind. All such persons could take vicarious satisfaction in the act of Mr. Walsh—if they could be reassured as to his motives.

If he did shoot at the image of a politician, Mr. Walsh may be one of those eccentric characters who look at and listen occasionally to programs that are not political, and he may simply have disliked the show. If that's the explanation, he's entitled to the benefit of the doubt: the odds are at least 47 to one that shooting is too good for it.

Walsh may have read Orwell's "1984" and decided to nip this thing in the bud. He may simply have disliked TV, or he may have been contemplating its performance and meditating dourly on the vagaries of service contracts.

CHILDREN WITH ULCERS STATEMENT OF DR. BERTRAM R. Girdany, University of Pittsburgh pediatric professor, that a startling number of small children have ulcers due to nervousness should shake Americans out of any complacency they may have.

Several years ago scientific tests were conducted in the lower grades of the Brooklyn schools with the finding that approximately 20 per cent of the youngsters would probably have mental disorders when they grew up.

Many children develop nervousness as a result of irritable parents and discords in home life. They hear too much about the A-bomb menace against which there is no defense. Too much of their mechanical entertainment is on the lurid side.

What an indictment that is of the environment adults create for children. Unless adults make a major effort to regain peace of mind and calmness of spirit their children will be heirs of the present-day neuroticism compounded many times. If adults want to make the world livable for children, it is time to begin to create an environment in which the young don't get ulcers.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

It would be an advantage in any political campaign if the ad hominem argument were discarded. The use of it generally makes candidates sound like noisy fishwives and adds nothing to the enlightenment of the people. The present campaign has reduced itself to a slugging match over personalities.

One of the arguments that I see used constantly is that General Eisenhower surrendered to Senator Taft. This involves an assumption that Senator Taft was either an ideological or a personal enemy of General Eisenhower. Actually, the most that can be said is that Taft is a Republican, leader of his party in the United States Senate, and a contender for the Republican nomination for the Presidency. His party regularity has never been in doubt.

At no time has Senator Taft denied General Eisenhower's right to be a candidate. If a personal schism developed, it was over the conduct of Governor Dewey, not over the conduct of General Eisenhower. Yet, knowing Senator Taft intimately, I would say that were Tom Dewey a candidate for President, Taft would be on his team because he firmly believes in the two party system and recognizes that a party cannot be subject, in a free society, to dictation by an individual but is a meeting of the minds on general principles, with a recognition of differences in approach and methods to be employed.

It is customary for a contender who failed, to wait for the successful nominee to invite his active support. This is done in both parties. The only difference in 1952 was that Eisenhower had never been in politics before and had less contact than is usual with the active leaders of the party. He had been a soldier and in recent years had been engaged in war and preparation for war outside the country.

Therefore, Senator Taft desired, if Eisenhower was willing, to discuss party affairs, personalities, relations and past performances. This was done at the famous conference at Morningside Drive in New York. At that moment, a schism existed in the Republican Party arising from causes that go back to 1932. That schism had been continuous since 1932 and each year became more intense. It was not a fight over fundamental principles, except the degree of American intervention in European affairs. It largely arose out of defeat and was stimulated by continued defeat. Involved also was a growing repugnance within the Republican Party for the continued and increasing domination by New York, its bankers, its industrialists and its so-called intellectuals connected with national magazines.

With much of this, General Eisenhower was vaguely familiar. He was nominated because of his record in the American Army at war, not because of his record as a Republican politician. Taft, as is his habit, puts his ideas on paper; maybe, it is a habit arising from Yankee thrift. That document was not an ultimatum to Eisenhower; Taft had already agreed to active participation in the campaign and part of his speaking schedule had already been arranged and announced by the Republican National Committee. It was a statement of (Continued on Page Six)

DIET AND HEALTH

Seek Hormone to Help Heart

By HERMAN M. BUNDESEN, M.D. TREATMENTS with hormones have given us new and better ways of handling many diseases. In fact, it has been said that we are living in the age of hormones. Hormones are substances manufactured by certain glands in the body, and put by them into the blood stream. The blood carries them to different parts of the body, where they regulate such activities as emotions, growth and sexual functions. Making Up Lack When the body has a shortage of necessary hormones they can sometimes be supplied by mouth or injections. In this way they are used to treat diseases that come from the lack of hormones. Arthritis has been helped with certain hormones from the pituitary gland and the adrenal gland. Certain types of cancer, such as cancer of the prostate in men, are helped tremendously with female sex hormones. Most everyone knows about the hormone insulin, which is essential to the proper use of starches and sugars in the body. Hormone Search Scientists are now searching for a hormone that may prove helpful to people with heart trouble. Numerous extracts have been obtained from heart muscles and different organs, and their effect tested on the heart in the hope they may contain the desired hormone. One such solution was obtained from extracts taken from heart and blood vessel tissues. Patients with heart failure, angina pectoris, or severe high blood pressure were then given fairly large doses of this heart muscle extract by mouth. Half Showed Improvement A total of 58 patients were tested in this way, about half this number showing a fair amount of improvement. Many of the patients found they could stand more physical exertion after taking the drug. In some it reduced the number of heart attacks, and relieved pain and other distressing symptoms. At present this drug cannot replace the treatment of heart disease with digitalis, mercury and other excellent drugs. Time alone will tell if it is the key in helping many patients to recover through hormone treatments for the heart. QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS K. F.: Are blood transfusions needed in cases of carbon monoxide poisoning? Answer: Complete rest is indicated in cases of carbon monoxide poisoning. The patient should be kept in bed, and should have enough covering on him to keep him warm. Blood transfusions are very rarely needed.

instead of in Uncle Sam's treasury, they will spend it in such a way that it will maintain employment and purchasing power at a safe and sound rate—in short sufficiently to keep the economic machine operating at the same speed and level as now. That assumption is inherent in Ike's repeated declaration that he hopes to strengthen and preserve a prosperity which is not based on war. Besides the time-for-a-change issue, this pledge appears to have become the Republican's strongest asset.

WARNING—Non political economists do not, as yet, endorse either solution, although they do agree with Ike's insistence on the possibility of a generous reduction in the budget two or three years hence. But they also warn that our economy will suffer severely, as Stalin prophesied at the recent Communist Party's Moscow convention, unless Stevenson or Eisenhower find some way to compensate for the annual withdrawal of $20-25 billion from circulation in payrolls, purchases, savings and investments. Whether this invigorating sum will be kept in productive use by the Stevenson or Eisenhower method will be determined on Nov. 4 in the election of both a new President and Congress.

SYNOPSIS The year is 1864, the Civil War drawing to an end. We find Denny Rawls piloting the packet "Astrid" along the treacherous Missouri river from St. Louis to Ft. Benton. He had rejected Kathleen Garrison's offer to captain her boat, "Varina." He is affianced to Astrid McQuestion, whose father owns the craft "Astrid." He wonders now why she is showing so much attention to his rival riverman, Capt. Mark Whittier. After many hazards Denny reaches a wharf at Jefferson City where he is amazed to find his sweetheart and Whittier awaiting him. The latter curiously demands an inspection of the "Astrid's" cargo. Search of the hold reveals contraband guns, and Whittier accuses Rawls of treason. When his fiancée joins in denouncing him, Rawls knows that he is a victim of a conspiracy. He is left stranded in port as the "Astrid" steams away. But the "Varina" later takes Denny aboard as captain and now in company with Kathleen Garrison once more, she introduces him to her first officer, a Mr. Earnshaw. The "Varina" determines to catch up with the packet "Astrid."

portant to both of us. Everything we have is tied up in this trip. "This is your first trip up the Missouri?" "Yes. You see, Dad and Bob went upriver a couple of years ago. Due to the war, the family fortunes in shipping were at a low ebb, and they decided to try prospecting. Last year, at Virginia City, they staked a rich claim, then sold it for a good price. With that stake they went into business. It's a wild country, a long way from towns or stores, and Dad had been a small-town merchant at one time. He saw the possibilities in trading, running a store. I guess it turned out to be a bigger gold mine even than a good claim." "It could easily do that." "Yes. Anyway, they wanted more supplies. The trouble was to get them there, conditions being as they are. Some are shipped overland, by way of Salt Lake, but that's slow and costly and pretty uncertain. Bob got the idea of buying a boat, since we used to be shipowners, and bringing up a whole cargo for their own use. They purchased the boat through a St. Louis agent, contracted for the cargo, and—then things commenced to go wrong." "Yes?" "Rawls' voice was sympathetic." "Dad was killed. An accident. That's about all I know about it. But it meant that Bob couldn't come down and take charge, as he had planned. He had to stay there, to look after things. So he sent me legal papers and told me to hire a captain. I had hoped to get you, because you know that country. We have flour, beans, molasses, hardware, miners' tools, and so on. You can see now, why I'm glad to have you along. And to answer your question, I'm anxious to see that country." "It's a beautiful land." Enthusiasm crept into his voice. "Wide, with an endless sky overhead. Off beyond where the boats go, there are the mountains, and that's a totally different country, where the world stands on edge." "You love it, don't you?" "Yes. I was born there. My folks were among the first to go that way in a covered wagon. That was back in the days when there was a lot of excitement about getting settlers for the Oregon country, so that it would be populated by Americans and go to the United States. My folks never got that far—not to the real Oregon country. But what they did reach has always suited me. This is a fine time to see the upper Missouri country, with spring advancing as we head north. The only bad thing this year is the threat of Indian trouble." "I'd as soon risk one kind of war as another," Kathleen said seriously. "Bob had to buy a lot of this Copyright, 1952, by Al Cody. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG news behind the news

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29 — Top economists here generally agree with the Eisenhower-Taft belief that the federal budget can be cut by at least $20 billion after two years, always barring the outbreak of total war. The election of a money-minded President and Congress would also help the cause of economy and tax reduction. On the basis of current figuring, it is believed that military expenditures can be kept at about $40 billion after a solid defense system has been built. Civilian costs of government should be about $20 or $25 billion annually, assuming that the Federal establishment foregoes or curtails certain proposed activities and persuades our allies to bear more of the rearmament burden.

OUTPUT CUT—In addition to this $20 billion reduction in spending, a slowdown in the expansion of industry's plants and facilities will cut the current output of dollars by at least another $5 billion a year, according to the latest analyses by public and private experts in this field. Defense Mobilizer Henry Fowler has testified that the 1950-1952 industrial growth, born of the Russian menace and the police action in Korea, has produced a production capacity commensurate with our military and civilian needs.

Pentagon spokesmen are more satisfied than they can admit publicly over the way new weapons are rolling off the assembly line here and abroad. CONFUSION — The problem now confusing the experts—and it will be a major headache for the next President—is this: "What will happen to the American economic system — employment, wages, prices, purchasing power, the volume of trade and industry, the huge emergency investment in production, transportation and distribution plant—when all this spending stops to the extent of $20 or $25 billion a year? How will this amount of annual slack be taken up? And who will take it up?" Although they have not met this question head-on in their campaign speeches, Governor Stevenson and General Eisenhower recognize it. They have given fairly clear ideas on how they would handle it as Chief Executive during the admittedly difficult period ahead.

ADLAI'S POLICY—The Democratic nominee, now that he has embraced almost all the Fair Deal's economic and social aims by accepting the Truman ultimatum that his record is the key factor in the campaign, would continue a program of federal expansion. ADLAI'S POLICY—The Democratic nominee, now that he has embraced almost all the Fair Deal's economic and social aims by accepting the Truman ultimatum that his record is the key factor in the campaign, would continue a program of federal expansion.

He would fill the $20-25 billion vacuum by increasing the government's large contributions in every field—military buildup, foreign aid, Social Security and farm benefits, public health, education and housing. Under Stevenson, judging from the promises he has given and the pledges made on his behalf by President Truman, Secretaries Acheson, Chapman and Brannan, government would remain big and expensive in accord with the Roosevelt-Truman pattern of twenty years. It would collect and direct the expenditure of $70 or $80 billion a year, possibly more.

Treasury-Secretary Snyder recently said that he saw no prospect of any sizeable reduction of the $264 billion public debt or the present peak tax burden, and there was no rebuke for this politically unpleasant remark from the White House or Springfield.

Mrs. Young Is Honored By Girl Scout Association

Court Of Awards Is Held Tuesday

Mrs. Bernard Young, Commissioner of the Circleville and Pickaway County Girl Scout Association for the past nine years, was honored Tuesday evening during the program of Fall Court of Awards given by the association in the Methodist church. Mrs. Young will retire from her position on Dec. 31.

All of the members of the troops presented Mrs. Young with a silver tray, which was engraved with her name and the years of service which she has given to the organization. They also presented her with a bouquet of red roses.

Mrs. Joseph Bell, deputy commissioner, welcomed the group and spoke on the meaning of the court. She said that instead of thinking of Girl Scouts earning these badges, we should rather think that the girls are being awarded the badges for their accomplishments.

Mrs. Robert Smithers gave a brief talk on badge work and introduced the troops and their leaders, who presented the awards to the girls.

Mrs. Smithers, leader of the new Senior Troop 9, presided at the investiture ceremony of the troop. She said that county as well as city girls were members of this troop and that it was not necessary to have been a Brownie or Intermediate scout to qualify for Senior scouting. Although badge work is not required, Miss Gail Dunlap of Williamsport, passed her life saving test and was awarded the badge. Mrs. Smithers presented the members with their pins.

Miss Shirley Dunlap is serving as president of the troop and Mrs. John Dunlap, Jr. is chairman of the senior program.

Mrs. Young spoke on, "Challenge." She stressed that the girls keep their sense of direction in order to build a strong, stable foundation for their adult life, and that their scouting and their appreciation of the scout mission would help them.

She said that she liked to think of the girls not choosing between bad and good, but choosing between good and best. She ended by saying that the Girl Scout organization should at all times be ready and willing to help the girls.

"To Whom Honor is Due," was the topic used by Mrs. Donald Mitchell in her talk given in appreciation of Mrs. Young's service in the association and her fine work for young people. She read a poem entitled, "Achievement," by Berta Hart Nance.

The program closed with group singing of "God of Our Father" and "Taps."

Badge awards were as follows: Troop 5: Campcraft badges were presented Anne Adkins, Carolyn Bell, Beverly Brink, Jane Davis, Gwynne Jenkins, Carol Ann Johnson, Bonalee Meadows, Patricia McAbee, Phyllis Peters, Nola Rader, Dianne Schell, Patricia Smith, Jo Anne Spice, Susan Stocklen and Elaine Woodward.

A VITAL MESSAGE TO MOTHERS OF GROWING CHILDREN

Most of us take it for granted that our children are well nourished... we give them enough food to fill their stomachs and assume they are getting enough nourishment as well.

But recent studies of child nutrition have come up with facts that challenge all our complacency about our family diet.

Children in all income groups partially undernourished

Over the past several years many nutrition studies have been made by private, state and federal agencies . . . including medical examinations of thousands of school children.

These studies showed that—even with the world's finest food supply—more than half our children are not getting all the nourishment they need for peak health. Serious nationwide nutritional deficiencies occur regardless of family income . . . largely because of our poor eating habits.

Bone weakness and tooth decay prevalent

Two of the most widespread problems are bone weakness and tooth decay.

Skeleton X-rays showed that a high percentage of the children had bones that were not as hard or strong as they should be—many even had some bone malformation. In thorough dental examinations most of the children were found to have tooth decay.

U. S. diet needs more calcium

These findings indicate that large percentages of our children are not getting enough of the calcium they need to build strong bones, and teeth that resist decay. Calcium, as you probably know, is found chiefly in milk and milk products . . . it is absolutely essential to growing children.

Yet nutritionists report the American diet is more lacking in calcium than in any other food element.

Bread research finds help for problem

As bakers of bread, our most universal food, the makers of Enriched Tip-Top Bread were in a natural position to help supplement the American diet with needed calcium. And that is exactly what they have done—after a series of careful experiments and consultations with health authorities.

Bone-building element doubled

The bakers of Enriched Tip-Top Bread have now doubled the bone and tooth building calcium in every loaf of New Tip-Top.

From now on when your children eat the New Tip-Top Bread they will get twice as much as before of this element so vital to the nourishment of strong bones and teeth.

New bread helps build up daily quota

Good whole milk, of course, is the first and foremost source of bone and tooth building material—children need at least a quart daily. But the fact is that many children do not drink that much.

Now—by serving the New Tip-Top Bread—you have a pleasing, effective way of reinforcing the essential element, calcium, in your child's diet. Eight slices of this new bread contain bone and tooth building calcium equal to a full glass of milk.

Most children eat that much bread daily as a matter of course. If you make sure your children eat the New Tip-Top Bread, you will automatically help them build up their quota of bone-building, tooth-building nourishment.

ESPECIALLY IMPORTANT TO CHILDREN— ADULTS PROFIT, TOO

The added calcium in the New Tip-Top Bread is of benefit to everyone. For children it increases the supply of bone- and tooth-building material while they are still growing and developing and is an insurance for later years.

For adults, both men and women, the New Tip-Top Bread provides additional calcium to help keep the bone structure strong.

Expectant mothers must have sufficient calcium to protect both themselves and the child.

Extra calcium is conducive to a feeling of well-being at all ages.

In addition to calcium . . .

New Tip-Top Bread brings you added milk nourishment with important minerals and high-quality protein essential to tissue building in the young and tissue repair in the adult. The new loaf not only gives you increased nourishment but even more delicious, home-baked flavor.

A VITAL MESSAGE TO MOTHERS OF GROWING CHILDREN

Most of us take it for granted that our children are well nourished... we give them enough food to fill their stomachs and assume they are getting enough nourishment as well.

But recent studies of child nutrition have come up with facts that challenge all our complacency about our family diet.

Children in all income groups partially undernourished

Over the past several years many nutrition studies have been made by private, state and federal agencies... including medical examinations of thousands of school children.

These studies showed that—even with the world's finest food supply—more than half our children are not getting all the nourishment they need for peak health. Serious nationwide nutritional deficiencies occur regardless of family income... largely because of our poor eating habits.

Bone weakness and tooth decay prevalent

Two of the most widespread problems are bone weakness and tooth decay.

Skeleton X-rays showed that a high percentage of the children had bones that were not as hard or strong as they should be—many even had some bone malformation. In thorough dental examinations most of the children were found to have tooth decay.

U. S. diet needs more calcium

These findings indicate that large percentages of our children are not getting enough of the calcium they need to build strong bones, and teeth that resist decay. Calcium, as you probably know, is found chiefly in milk and milk products... it is absolutely essential to growing children.

Yet nutritionists report the American diet is more lacking in calcium than in any other food element.

Bread research finds help for problem

As bakers of bread, our most universal food, the makers of Enriched Tip-Top Bread were in a natural position to help supplement the American diet with needed calcium. And that is exactly what they have done—after a series of careful experiments and consultations with health authorities.

Bone-building element doubled

The bakers of Enriched Tip-Top Bread have now doubled the bone and tooth building calcium in every loaf of New Tip-Top.

From now on when your children eat the New Tip-Top Bread they will get twice as much as before of this element so vital to the nourishment of strong bones and teeth.

New bread helps build up daily quota

Good whole milk, of course, is the first and foremost source of bone and tooth building material—children need at least a quart daily. But the fact is that many children do not drink that much.

Now—by serving the New Tip-Top Bread—you have a pleasing, effective way of reinforcing the essential element, calcium, in your child's diet. Eight slices of this new bread contain bone and tooth building calcium equal to a full glass of milk.

Most children eat that much bread daily as a matter of course. If you make sure your children eat the New Tip-Top Bread, you will automatically help them build up their quota of bone-building, tooth-building nourishment.

ESPECIALLY IMPORTANT TO CHILDREN— ADULTS PROFIT, TOO

The added calcium in the New Tip-Top Bread is of benefit to everyone. For children it increases the supply of bone- and tooth-building material while they are still growing and developing and is an insurance for later years.

For adults, both men and women, the New Tip-Top Bread provides additional calcium to help keep the bone structure strong.

Expectant mothers must have sufficient calcium to protect both themselves and the child.

Extra calcium is conducive to a feeling of well-being at all ages.

In addition to calcium...

New Tip-Top Bread brings you added milk nourishment with important minerals and high-quality protein essential to tissue building in the young and tissue repair in the adult. The new loaf not only gives you increased nourishment but even more delicious, home-baked flavor.

If Weatherman Blamed For Rain Should Be Praised For Sunshine

By SAUL PETT
(For Hal Boyle)

NEW YORK—(AP)—Everybody talks about the weather, but nobody does anything about starting a Be Kind To Weatherman Week.

I think it's about time we were a little nicer to the weatherman.

After all, he doesn't make the stuff himself. He just takes what the manufacturer sends him. Don't blame him for the final product.

A weatherman has feelings, too, I discovered in talking with Ernest J. Christie, meteorologist in charge of the U. S. Weather Bureau in New York.

Christie gets a little tired of hearing sports announcers say, "the weatherman wasn't very kind to us today." He flinches when he meets an acquaintance in the rain who complains, "fine day you brought us."

"You'd be surprised how many people still blame us for the weather," Christie says. "Why not blame the weather? And if they're going to blame rain on us, why not give us credit for the sunshine. People rarely do."

Christie likes to play golf. It happens that sometimes he is more the wishful-thinking golfer than he is the realistic weatherman. When he gets caught on the seventh green in a sudden down-pour, he never hears the end of it.

"What these folks who kid me don't realize," Christie explains, "is that I knew I was taking my chances in going out to the course. I simply preferred to risk rain rather than not play. It was my own responsibility."

Christie finds many people are still mentally lazy where weather is concerned. They call his office with all sorts of questions. Should I take my baby out today? Will the race track be fast or muddy? Should I close all the windows before I leave? Does my boy need a raincoat today?

"All we can do," Christie says, "is repeat the forecast to them. We never advise people what to do. They must make up their own minds."

When they're not blaming bad weather on the weatherman, some people blame it on things they don't understand—like the explosion of an atom bomb. "The effect of an atomic explosion in the atmosphere," Christie explains, "is very, very small compared to the amount of transformations of energy in the upper air needed to produce weather changes."

Some people get so mad about the weather they've even threatened to phone their congressman about the weatherman. This has happened to Jim Osmun, assistant meteorologist at the bureau here. But among his own neighbors in a New Jersey suburb, he is an object of respectful attention.

If Jim steps out of the house in the morning wearing a raincoat, a couple of neighbors frequently will return for theirs. Wives watch Mrs. Osmun carefully. Some will hang up their wash only when the weatherman's wife does.

Like anybody else, a weatherman is not impartial about the weather. Osmun says:

"I personally prefer a day when the wind is less than 12 miles an hour, when the humidity is below 80 per cent, the temperature is around 70 and there's just enough clouds in the sky for a contrast between the blue and white."

"Psychological tests show that this is the kind of a day which best gives a feeling of well-being and a feeling which makes you contentedly introverted. We get about two or three of these days a month."

"My next best choice is a day when there's a mild threat of snow in the air or even a light snow coming down. When the sky is darkly overcast and there's a feeling of something big impending, you feel warmer toward other people, you feel more gregarious. You feel more like buying somebody a drink and just talking while the sky closes in on you."

Elinor Williams' Teen Tips

Boys have problems, too. . . did you know that? Usually girls are the ones who are burdened with the blues, but this boy has a puzzler and it's about—you guessed it—a girl:

"I have a problem that has worried me to death. My girl lives in a nearby town. I met her this Summer when she was working here for her uncle. Right off the bat I fell in love with her and she seemed the same way.

"School started, so she had to go back home. I asked her if I could go to see her on Saturday, 'Yes,' I wrote her telling her that I was coming to see her, but she wrote back saying she had something else to do.

"The next weekend I had to work. I wrote and told her that I could come the following week, but she ate hands after 14 years of government supervision.

Ans.—If she were really eager to see you, she probably would have written to invite you to come in the first place. . . or, if she had plans for the day you suggested, she would have set another date immediately, keeping the weekend free for your date.

Sorry, but she doesn't sound very enthusiastic. Why not give her one more chance to show a real interest by suggesting one more date to her. If she refuses again and doesn't try to arrange a more convenient evening, it was obviously just a matter of Summer fun with her, and now that she's home again, she has other interests.

Some Arctic mosquitoes are so abundant and ferocious in the short Summer period that they can drain the blood from a man's body in a few minutes when they attack in force and the man is unprotected, says a report by Prof. Alexander Klots of City College, New York City.

Ohio Farmers Want 90 Pct. Parity Plan

COLUMBUS, Oct. 29—(AP)—About 42 percent of Ohio farmers want 90 per cent of parity price supports, says the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation.

John Sims, executive secretary of the federation, said a poll among 4,148 Farm Bureau members showed 42.7 per cent want 90 per cent support, 36.7 per cent want no support at all, 15.5 per cent want flexible supports and 5.1 per cent are undecided.

The federation supports flexible supports while the Democratic Party platform pledges 90 percent and the Republican Party platform pledges a flexible program. The GOP candidate, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, has stated he believes that the 90 per cent program is OK for now, should be hiked to 100 per cent later.

Illinois Rated Even Bet In Tuesday Poll

'Experts' Claim Adlai Can't Pull His Usual Half-Million Edge

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Illinois, with 27 electoral votes at stake in next Tuesday's presidential election, remains in the doubtful column.

Although Illinois is the home state of Democratic Gov. Adlai Stevenson and delivered him a record 572,000-vote plurality four years ago, it is a good even bet now as to whether he can carry the state against Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the Republican candidate.

Democratic national tickets have carried the state since 1932, although a Republican governor was elected in 1940 and 1944. The GOP presidential candidates won Illinois electoral votes in four contests from 1916 to 1928.

Traditionally, the Illinois electorate is divided into sharply-defined party strongholds. Chicago, with approximately one half of the state's population, is Democratic. The rest of the state, with exceptions such as the urban industrial belt across the Mississippi River from St. Louis, votes GOP.

REPUBLICANS are basing their predictions of victory for Gen. Eisenhower in Illinois upon the expectation of an unusually large vote in the 101 downstate counties and in the heavily Republican suburban portions of Cook County. Chicago is in Cook County.

President Truman's victory in 1948 might not have materialized had the downstate vote been heavier. He received 54.5 per cent of the 2,232,000 Cook County total. But he got only 45.1 per cent of the comparatively light downstate vote of 1,732,000. Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Truman's opponent, received 54.9 per cent of the downstate vote.

For a rule of thumb estimate on how the Illinois vote is going as election night returns come in, it would appear that Stevenson could be considered to be leading if returns from Cook County show him getting 55 per cent of the votes or more. If Eisenhower's tally runs better than 55 per cent downstate, it would appear he would win.

Here's how the straws have been blowing in Illinois:

A poll by the Chicago Sun-Times, on the basis of straw vote samples in 16 downstate counties—including a substantial proportion from Democratic St. Clair County—indicated an Eisenhower lead of 53.57 per cent to Stevenson's 46.42 in results published Oct. 24.

In Cook County, the Sun-Times found, a Chicago lead for Stevenson of 52.31 per cent was offset by a 64.50 per cent preference for Eisenhower in the suburban Cook County area. Republican leaders of the suburbs will account for a larger proportion of the Cook County vote this year than ever before.

Jacob M. Arvey, Democratic national committeeman from Illinois, says Stevenson will carry the state by "100,000 or more." C. Wayland Brooks, one of Illinois' two GOP

Celina Man Harks Back To Another Adlai

CELINA, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Gov. Adlai Stevenson doesn't know this, but he's going to get a special introduction when he visits Celina Saturday.

The man who's going to do the introducing is Carlton C. Reiser, the Democratic nominee for congress from the Fourth District.

Nothing unusual in that? Well, listen. Reiser was born 16 minutes to 1 a. m. Nov. 1, 1897, when William Jennings Bryan, a noted Democrat, was campaigning on a 16-to-1 silver platform.

Reiser's earliest recollection of politics is his grandfather chortling over the $150 he won betting Adlai Stevenson would be elected vice president in 1892 in Grover Cleveland's second term in the White House.

Adlai Stevenson, the vice president, was the grandfather of Adlai Stevenson, the governor and present Democratic presidential nominee. And, Saturday, when Stevenson will be introduced in Celina, is Reiser's birthday.

"It's the finest birthday present I could have," said Reiser.

Absent Voting Rules Repeated

COLUMBUS, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Secretary of State Ted W. Brown is reminding voters who will be absent from their homes on Election Day that they have only a few more days to cast absent voter ballots.

Requests for absent voter ballots by civilian and disabled voters must be delivered to their county election boards by 6:30 p. m. Thursday. The ballots, when received, must be returned to election boards by noon Friday.

EDITOR, THE HERALD:

The city charter—We have heard it up and down, in and out, off and on, come and go, pro and con. Now, lay down your weapons of war about that city manager you are wrangling about.

There will be a little man at your disposal after January. No doubt he'll put you in or out; it all depends on which side you kiss him.

If he can't do the job, Alger Hiss can with Dean's help. "Give 'em hell" Harry will put a whistle stop in front of the courthouse. Margaret sings on the front steps while Alger steals all the records.

Dean will turn his back on Mr. Hiss.

Now, boys, just stop squirtin' and squirming about your manager, for "give 'em hell" Harry is your baby from here on out.

But if he does as well with us as he has with the whole country, it will be mostly out.

He can move his piano in and play the Roosevelt Lullaby or the Potsdam agreement while you boys grind your choppers at something less important or sit back and look on.

Any way you look at it, I think the bat man and his bunch of gangsters can help you out. It all depends which side picks him up first.

I do know one thing: if he can not lie you in he will spend you out. This is just to remind you that it is a suggestion from me.

But surely there will be lots of loose hands at Washington after Nov. 4. So take your time, folks, and look them over.

Now, if the whistle stopper will not fill the bill, look over some of the bunch he has had around him for seven years. One might do.

and Poly-Lin makes dollars last longer, too

Poly-Lin is the wonderful new pure polymeric linseed oil that makes Dean & Barry house paint look smoother, look glossier, look better longer. The two illustrations (above) tell you why.

Notice the loose and open structure of regular linseed oil in example (A). Next, see the tight, closely interlocked structure of Poly-Lin in example (B).

It stands to reason that the tight and tough structure of Poly-Lin produces a house paint that's stronger, more elastic all the way through. It mixes better, goes on easier. It gives a more uniform coating, doesn't break down and dull out prematurely. Its enamel-like beauty lasts and lasts!

And all of these wonderful advantages are yours at no extra cost. So see us soon. Or be sure to specify Dean & Barry house paint with Poly-Lin when you hire your painter-decorator. You'll be glad you did.

Fancy Bonus Days Fade In Major Leagues

1953 Payments Face $6,000 Limit In New Baseball Agreement

NEW YORK, Oct. 29 — Payment of fancy $100,000 bonuses to untied youngsters to sign with major league baseball clubs may be sharply curtailed in 1953.

Major and minor league clubs, at their joint December meeting in Phoenix, Ariz., will be asked to vote on a proposed new bonus rule that would limit such payments to $6,000.

The new proposal follows the shelling out of vast sums by major league clubs on green talent during the last several years. During the last 18 months, for instance, the Boston Red Sox spent some $430,000 for high school and college stars.

Two of the highest bonus players are pitchers Paul Pettit and Billy Joe Davidson. Pettit, property of Pittsburgh, received an estimated $100,000. Davidson reportedly received $120,000 for casting his lot with Cleveland. Neither has yet made the majors.

THE NEW proposal was drawn up Tuesday by a special recommendation committee of the game's Major-Minor Executive Council.

Committee members and the council met in Commissioner Ford Frick's office here. Afterwards they declined to say what was discussed, but it was learned that the bonus was the main topic of discussion.

The new proposal provides: 1. Each major league club would agree, in a sort of a gentlemen's agreement, not to offer a bonus exceeding $6,000 to any player.

2. Violation of this agreement would subject the transgressor to a year's suspension, a $500 fine and loss of the player.

3. Minor league clubs would enter into a similar agreement with $5,000 as the ceiling for open classification, triple and double A loops, $4,000 for double A and $3,000 for B, C, and D organizations.

4. All bonus players regardless of the amount they received, would be subject to unrestricted draft if not called up to their major league club within one year.

5. Clubs would be forbidden to make special payments to parents, friends, relatives or agents in forms of cash or automobiles.

HOWEVER, President Walter O'Malley of the Brooklyn Dodgers is of the opinion that the television

National Loop Data Point To Rookie Power

CINCINNATI, Oct. 29 — The National League has figured out that persons who say there is "a scarcity of good young players" don't know what they're talking about.

Dave Grote, manager of the league's service bureau, has come up with the observation that the senior loop had a bumper crop of new stars in 1952.

Grote points out that rookies actually carried most of the season's pitching laurels. Joe Black of the Brooklyn Dodgers had a 15 won and 4 lost record; Hoyt Wilhelm of the New York Giants was a 15-3 performer and had the best earned run average with a mark of 2.43.

Eddie Yuhas of the St. Louis Cardinals had the best percentage with .857 on a 12-2 record.

Others listed by the National League as having made their mark in 1952, although some of them weren't freshmen in the strict sense of the word, were Ed Mathews, Johnny Logan and Bob Thorpe of the Boston Braves; Toby Atwell and Harry Chitt of the Chicago Cubs; Roy McMillan and Jim Greengrass of the Cincinnati Reds; Davey Williams and "Dusty" Rhoades of the Philadelphia Phillies and Dick Groat of Pittsburgh.

Mathews, a 20-year-old left-handed hitting third baseman, clubbed 25 home runs during the past season and became the first rookie in National League history to hit three homers in one game.

Clark, a 26-year-old Ohio University graduate, hit .335 in 47 games with the Phils and nailed down a starting berth late in the season.

Mudhen Chieftain To Face Hearing

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Oct. 29 — Danny Menendez, owner of the Charleston Senators baseball club returned voluntarily Wednesday to answer a larceny indictment in the Lucas County common pleas court.

His indictment was an outgrowth of a switch last summer of his Toledo Mudhens of the American Association to Charleston. Season ticket-holders said Menendez sold them seats with the understanding the team would stay in Toledo.

problem, rather than the bonus controversy, will be the No. 1 job for the major league owners.

"We would like to televise our road games next year," O'Malley said. "In order to do that, I must get permission from the seven other clubs in the league. Sometime ago I wrote to all these clubs. Up to now, not one has given me the desired permission."

CHS Ending Workouts For Wildcat Tilt

Circleville's Red and Black Tiger gridders will wind up pre-game practices Wednesday night for their Thursday night match against the invading Wildcats of Westerville.

This week's game, next-to-last on the 1952 schedule for the Tigers, promises to be a colorful affair.

In addition to the clash of the football teams, fans will see a big "parent's night" halftime show featuring both the Circleville and Westerville marching bands.

Circleville, fresh from an 18-13 victory over Greenfield last Friday, will seek its third win in eight starts during the encounter.

WESTERVILLE Wildcats to date have scored four victories in seven starts, winning the last three in a row.

Tigers gridders will face a light, fast team in the match. The Wildcat lineup features two halfbacks under the 140-pound mark.

This week's CHS test was moved up to Thursday night because of the Central Ohio Teachers' Association meeting planned Friday in Columbus. All local schools will be dismissed Friday.

The encounter, last for the Tigers before meeting the Washington C. H. Blue Lions next Friday in the season finale, is to begin with kickoff at 8 p. m.

Only four starting offensive players at the U. of Miami are seniors. The defensive unit has three starting seniors.

Ted Williams Plans Comeback

NEW YORK, Oct. 29 — Contrary to earlier reports, Ted Williams, Boston Red Sox slugger now stationed with the Marines in Puerto Rico, fully expects to resume his baseball career after his discharge in October, 1953.

"A man 34 or 35 years old, who has spent two years out of baseball as I am doing, can hardly come back and show the same effectiveness," he is quoted as saying. "But I expect to try a comeback. If I find I have lost the touch I will retire."

Pro Football Rookies Lead On Offense

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 29 — Two National Football League rookies are leading the pro loop in ground gaining and passing.

Hugh McElhenny, the San Francisco line crusher, moved from second to first place in the rushing department, according to official NFL statistics.

The 49ers flash, who moved into the pro ranks after starring with the University of Washington in the Pacific Coast League, has gained 437 yards on 43 attempts, an average of 10.2 yards per carry.

The No. 1 passer is Green Bay's Vito Parilli who moved ahead of teammate Tobin Rote. Parilli has completed 25 of the 47 passes he's thrown, gaining 485 yards for an average of 10.32 yards a toss. Rote, with 42 completed in 78 tries, has gained 681 yards or 8.73 yards each.

Mac Speedie, the glue-fingered end for the Cleveland Browns, and the Chicago Bears, Gene Schroeder remained tied for the second week in pass receiving, each catching 26.

Lou Groza of Cleveland who sets a new NFL record every time he kicks a point after touchdown is rapidly approaching a new record for field goals in one season. The guy with the talented toe has kicked 15 extra points and kicked 10 field goals to lead the scorers with 45 points. Groza holds the NFL record for most field goals, 13 kicked in 1950.

Fancy Bonus Days Fade In Major Loops

1953 Payments Face $6,000 Limit In New Baseball Agreement

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Payment of fancy $100,000 bonuses to untied youngsters to sign with major league baseball clubs may be sharply curtailed in 1953.

Major and minor league clubs, at their joint December meeting in Phoenix, Ariz., will be asked to vote on a proposed new bonus rule that would limit such payments to $6,000.

The new proposal follows the shelling out of vast sums by major league clubs on green talent during the last several years. During the last 18 months, for instance, the Boston Red Sox spent some $30,000 for high school and college stars.

Two of the highest bonus players are pitchers Paul Pettit and Billy Joe Davidson. Pettit, property of Pittsburgh, received an estimated $100,000. Davidson reportedly received $120,000 for casting his lot with Cleveland. Neither has yet made the majors.

THE NEW proposal was drawn up Tuesday by a special recommendation committee of the game's Major - Minor Executive Council.

Committee members and the council met in Commissioner Ford Frick's office here. Afterwards they declined to say what was discussed, but it was learned that the bonus was the main topic of discussion.

The new proposal provides:

1. Each major league club owner would agree, in a sort of a gentlemen's agreement, not to offer a bonus exceeding $6,000 to any player.

2. Violation of this agreement would subject the transgressor to a year's suspension, a $500 fine and loss of the player.

3. Minor league clubs would enter into a similar agreement with $8,000 as the ceiling for open classification, triple and double A loops, $4,000 for double A and $3,000 for B, C, and D organizations.

4. All bonus players regardless of the amount they received, would be subject to unrestricted draft if not called up to their major league club within one year.

5. Clubs would be forbidden to make special payments to parents, friends, relatives or agents in forms of cash or automobiles.

HOWEVER, President Walter O'Malley of the Brooklyn Dodgers is of the opinion that the television

National Loop Data Point To Rookie Power

CINCINNATI, Oct. 29.—(AP)—The National League has figured out that persons who say there is "a scarcity of good young players" don't know what they're talking about.

Dave Grote, manager of the league's service bureau, has come up with the observation that the senior loop had a bumper crop of new stars in 1952.

Grote points out that rookies actually carried most of the season's pitching laurels. Joe Black of the Brooklyn Dodgers had a 15 win and 4 lost record; Hoyt Wilhelm of the New York Giants was a 15-3 performer and had the best earned run average with a mark of 2.43.

Eddie Yuhas of the St. Louis Cardinals had the best percentage with .857 on a 12-2 record.

Others listed by the National League as having made their mark in 1952, although some of them weren't freshmen in the strict sense of the word, were Ed Mathews, Johnny Logan and Bob Thorpe of the Boston Braves; Toby Atwell and Harry Chiti of the Chicago Cubs; Roy McMillan and Jim Greengrass of the Cincinnati Reds; Davey Williams and "Dusty" Rhoades of the Giants; Mel Clark of the Philadelphia Phillies and Dick Groat of Pittsburgh.

Mathews, a 20-year-old left-handed hitting third baseman, clubbed 25 home runs during the past season and became the first rookie in National League history to hit three homers in one game.

Clark, a 26-year-old Ohio University graduate, hit .335 in 47 games with the Phils and nailed down a starting berth late in the season.

Mudhen Chieftain To Face Hearing

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Danny Menendez, owner of the Charleston Senators baseball club returned voluntarily Wednesday to answer a larceny indictment in the Lucas County common pleas court.

His indictment was an outgrowth of a switch last summer of his Toledo Mudhens of the American Association to Charleston. Season ticket-holders said Menendez sold them seats with the understanding the team would stay in Toledo.

problem, rather than the bonus controversy, will be the No. 1 job for the major league owners.

"We would like to televise our road games next year," O'Malley said. "In order to do that, I must get permission from the seven other clubs in the league. Sometime ago I wrote to all these clubs. Up to now, not one has given me the desired permission."

CHS Ending Workouts For Wildcat Tilt

Circleville's Red and Black Tiger gridders will wind up pre-game practices Wednesday night for their Thursday night match against the invading Wildcats of Westerville.

This week's game, next-to-last on the 1952 schedule for the Tigers, promises to be a colorful affair.

In addition to the clash of the football teams, fans will see a big "parent's night" halftime show featuring both the Circleville and Westerville marching bands.

Circleville, fresh from an 18-13 victory over Greenfield last Friday, will seek its third win in eight starts during the encounter.

WESTERVILLE Wildcats to date have scored four victories in seven starts, winning the last three in a row.

Tigers gridders will face a light, fast team in the match. The Wildcat lineup features two halfbacks under the 140-pound mark.

This week's CHS test was moved up to Thursday night because of the Central Ohio Teachers' Association meeting planned Friday in Columbus. All local schools will be dismissed Friday.

The encounter, last for the Tigers before meeting the Washington C. H. Blue Lions next Friday in the season finale, is to begin with kick-off at 8 p. m.

Only four starting offensive players at the U. of Miami are seniors. The defensive unit has three starting seniors.

County Health Council Urged To Support Legislative Drive

State Group's Aims Lauded By Blackburn

Contemplated Action Would Seek More Available Funds

Dr. A. D. Blackburn, Pickaway County health commissioner, urged Wednesday that the newly-formed Health Council give its support to a new legislative drive contemplated by the Ohio Public Health Association.

He called attention to the merits of the campaign itself and pointed out that the association is able to gather strong influence in behalf of health program development.

"It's an organization that is able to bring about much needed improvements in various health fields," Dr. Blackburn said, "and I urge that the new county health organization here seriously consider some degree of cooperation with the new legislative efforts lined up for the association."

Any person interested in improvement of the state's health services is eligible to join the association, he explained. Nominal dues are charged for regular members.

PICKAWAY County's new Health Council installed officers here only recently and has not as yet listed specific projects for the organization. The council is a composite group, formed of various local organizations supporting improvement of health services.

The legislative committee of the OPHA drew up eight recommendations aimed at betterment of the state's public health setup. The recommendations were as follows:

1. That the legislature appropriate adequate funds to support fully the existing program of the Ohio department of health without dependence on federal subsidies;

2. That the legislature pass legislation providing for mandated millage from local tax funds for the support of local health districts to be adopted by local election;

3. That, pending this long range and stable support of local public health which this would provide, the legislature appropriate sufficient funds to provide the full allowance of state subsidy now established in state statute.

4. That the full support of the state health department by the state and the full allotment of state subsidy will provide temporary support for local health units until they have mandated local means of their own.

5. That the Wheeler bill be extended from a one year basis to a five year period.

6. THAT THE SANITARY inspection of restaurants now handled by the fire marshal be placed under the supervision and control of local health districts;

7. That in the case of the local health district failing to provide this service that the responsibility, in such cases, be the duty of the Ohio department of health to promote such services on the part of the local health district.

4. That the power to inspect and charge reasonable fees be vested in the local health districts.

5. That a representative committee of the OPHA be appointed by the executive committee to assist the director of the Ohio department of health secure better and adequate funds from the state finance committee.

6. That the executive committee of the OPHA appoint additional members to the legislative committee to assist with future activities of the legislative committee as sub-committees.

7. That the membership dues of the OPHA be increased to at least three dollars to everyone.

8. That the statutory requirements for qualification of state director of health be raised to insure continuity of appointment of a properly trained, adequately experienced public health administrator, and that the salary for the position be raised to a figure which is comparable to the amount paid this position in comparable states.

THE WHEELER bill, mentioned in recommendation No. 2, permits counties in weak financial condition to propose a one mill levy to bolster the local health budget.

Under terms of the bill, the levy would be established if approved by the voters for only one year. Under the OPHA recommendation, it would be established for a five-year period.

"This is a sensible change to propose," Dr. Blackburn said, "since it's obvious a county trying to bring about long-range improvements in health services could accomplish little within one year."

"I want to emphasize in regard to this recommendation however,

Disease-Free Wheat Types Are On Way

New wheat varieties which brush off common diseases—and even dull the teeth of some insects—are on the way. Plant breeders in Kansas and Oklahoma are coming close to such cereals by crossing wheat with wheatgrass.

"Locked up in the wheat-grasses is resistance to rusts, that Pickaway County does not contemplate any such levy. The step has been proposed only for those counties in urgent need of more financial funds."

smuts, blotches, mosaic and mildew," experts report.

"Occasionally a cross can be found that stand up to jointworm, wheat stem sawfly and other pests. The problem is to hit the right combination that will transfer these tough traits to the resulting hybrids and still have a high-producing wheat."

Experts add: "several seasons may slip by" before farmers cash in on these new bread grains. Extensive work already has produced some crosses wheatlike in appearance, others that look like grass and "intermediates."

SOME OF the intermediate and grasslike strains may not have a berry in them and others may or may not have beards. To the farmer they look terrible, but they contain some of the best disease and insect resistant qualities.

The 1,500 lines grown in the Kansas nursery last season provide a huge reservoir of essential qualities for breeding new varieties.

The new parent stock does provide a comfortable cushion to fall back on in case some disease like race 15B of stem rust runs rampant and wipes out susceptible varieties. Plant pathologists are fearful such an outbreak might happen.

There is a chance that protein content of the new hybrids will be considerably higher than that of their wheat parents.

What are chances of breeders hitting the right combination? Opening of one new breeding material pool, like that of the wheatgrass hybrids, gives them several thousand chances of hitting a new combination that will top any wheat being grown.

County Health Council Urged To Support Legislative Drive

State Group's Aims Lauded By Blackburn

Contemplated Action Would Seek More Available Funds

Dr. A. D. Blackburn, Pickaway County health commissioner, urged Wednesday that the newly-formed Health Council give its support to a new legislative drive contemplated by the Ohio Public Health Association.

He called attention to the merits of the campaign itself and pointed out that the association is able to gather strong influence in behalf of health program development.

"It's an organization that is able to bring about much needed improvements in various health fields," Dr. Blackburn said, "and I urge that the new county health organization here seriously consider some degree of cooperation with the new legislative efforts lined up for the association."

Any person interested in improvement of the state's health services is eligible to join the association, he explained. Nominal dues are charged for regular members.

PICKAWAY County's new Health Council installed officers here only recently and has not as yet listed specific projects for the organization. The council is a composite group, formed of various local organizations supporting improvement of health services.

The legislative committee of the OPHA drew up eight recommendations aimed at betterment of the state's public health setup. The recommendations were as follows:

1. That the legislature appropriate adequate funds to support fully the existing program of the Ohio department of health without dependence on federal subsidies;

That the legislature pass legislation providing for mandated millage from local tax funds for the support of local health districts to be adopted by local election;

That, pending this long range and stable support of local public health which this would provide, the legislature appropriate sufficient funds to provide the full allowance of state subsidy now established in state statute.

The full support of the state health department by the state and the full allotment of state subsidy will provide temporary support for local health units until they have mandated local means of their own.

2. That the Wheeler bill be extended from a one year basis to a five year period.

3. THAT THE SANITARY inspection of restaurants now handled by the fire marshal be placed under the supervision and control of local health districts;

That in the case of the local health district failing to provide this service that the responsibility, in such cases, be the duty of the Ohio department of health to promote such services on the part of the local health district.

4. That the power to inspect and charge reasonable fees be vested in the local health districts.

5. That a representative committee of the OPHA be appointed by the executive committee to assist the director of the Ohio department of health secure better and adequate funds from the state finance committee.

6. That the executive committee of the OPHA appoint additional members to the legislative committee to assist with future activities of the legislative committee as sub-committees.

7. That the membership dues of the OPHA be increased to at least three dollars to everyone.

8. That the statutory requirements for qualification of state director of health be raised to insure continuity of appointment of a properly trained, adequately experienced public health administrator, and that the salary for the position to be raised to a figure which is comparable to the amount paid this position in comparable states.

THE WHEELER bill, mentioned in recommendation No. 2, permits counties in weak financial condition to propose a one mill levy to bolster the local health budget.

Under terms of the bill, the levy would be established if approved by the voters for only one year. Under the OPHA recommendation, it would be established for a five-year period.

"This is a sensible change to propose," Dr. Blackburn said, "since it's obvious a county trying to bring about long-range improvements in health services could accomplish little within one year."

"I want to emphasize in regard to this recommendation however,

Disease-Free Wheat Types Are On Way

New wheat varieties which brush off common diseases—and even dull the teeth of some insects—are on the way. Plant breeders in Kansas and Oklahoma are coming close to such cereals by crossing wheat with wheatgrass.

"Locked up in the wheat-grasses is resistance to rusts,

smuts, blotches, mosaic and mildew," experts report.

"Occasionally a cross can be found that stand up to jointworm, wheat stem sawfly and other pests. The problem is to hit the right combination that will transfer these tough traits to the resulting hybrids and still have a high-producing wheat."

Experts add: "several seasons may slip by" before farmers cash in on these new bread grains. Extensive work already has produced some crosses wheatlike in appearance, others that look like grass and "intermediates."

SOME OF the intermediate and grasslike strains may not have a berry in them and others may or may not have beards. To the farmer they look terrible, but they contain some of the best disease and insect resistant qualities.

The 1,500 lines grown in the Kansas nursery last season provide a huge reservoir of essential qualities for breeding new varieties.

The new parent stock does provide a comfortable cushion to fall back on in case some disease like race 15B of stem rust runs rampant and wipes out susceptible varieties. Plant pathologists are fearful such an outbreak might happen.

There is a chance that protein content of the new hybrids will be considerably higher than that of their wheat parents.

What are chances of breeders hitting the right combination? Opening of one new breeding material pool, like that of the wheatgrass hybrids, gives them several thousand chances of hitting a new combination that will top any wheat being grown.

that Pickaway County does not contemplate any such levy. The step has been proposed only for those counties in urgent need of more financial funds."
